

THE sesqui-centennial exposition at Philadelphia has opened, not with the glamor of its predecessor of fifty years ago, but with promise enough of being a worthy reminder of the importance of the year.

But there seems to be too little interest elsewhere in preparing for Fourth of July observance this year which will stand sufficiently out from other years to make the occasion memorable. For it is an important anniversary. Not only is it the hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, but it is the hundredth anniversary of the death of Thomas Jefferson, who wrote it, and of John Adams, its chief expounder and defender.

JUST ten days before his death, in response to an invitation to attend the national celebration at Washington, Jefferson wrote:

"The general spread of the light of science has already laid open to every view the palpable truth, that the mass of mankind has not been born with saddles on their backs, nor a favored few booted and spurred, ready to ride them legitimately, by the grace of God." "Let the annual return of this day forever refresh our recollections of these rights, and an undiminished devotion to them."

Yet Jefferson knew the burdens as well as the rights of democracy. Thirty years earlier, in a letter to Philip Mazzei, he had written of the opposition of "all timid men, who prefer the calm of despotism to the boisterous sea of liberty."

IT IS just because we have survived a hundred and fifty years of "the boisterous sea of liberty" that we should this year dedicate ourselves anew to further voyaging on that same sea. For there were never before so many timid souls, who "prefer the calm of despotism." Half of Europe has been that choice, and there are multitudes of Americans who long for it. Democracy demands a price, which many of us are increasingly unwilling to pay. Once a year, as routine, and once a generation more conspicuously, is none too often to "refresh our recollections of these rights, and an undiminished devotion to them."

MEXICO has followed our good example, and passed a stringent immigration law. Appropriately enough, it is directed primarily against us. It forbids the entry of criminals, prostitutes and their parasites, dope fiends and persons without visible means of support or supported by illegal or criminal occupations. This means, for the most part, Americans. The sort of Americans who are not wanted in this country are no longer to be tolerated in Mexico, either.

Which is quite right. Each country should take care of its own undesirable. And if Mexico keeps ours out, there can be no objection if we keep out Mexico's. We have enough of our own.

SENATOR Oscar Underwood is to retire, because he finds Congress a bore. One can scarcely blame him. Congress is a bore. But Underwood has been the slowest to find it out, and he should have been one of the least bored of the lot. He has been in Congress for thirty years, though he is less than sixty-five years old, and he has been leader of his party in both the House and the Senate. He has been chairman of the principal committees and commissions, and has had some of the principal policies of the nation in his charge for a generation. Such a life, of great service and of great honor, should not naturally be a bore. But, in Congress, it is.

CONGRESS does not need to be a bore. The legislative assemblies of other nations are not. The French Chamber of Deputies is one of the most exciting places in existence. The British Parliament is so interesting that some of the principal business men of England seek seats in it, just to be in the spectacle. If our Congress is a bore, it is because its debates settle nothing, its decisions are made in committees, its work is mostly errand-running and its chief interest is in petty local measures. These things do not have to be. Log-rolling and errand-running do not have to be. They are not in the British Parliament, and Congress could be made interesting, by the simple device of having the members of the Cabinet in it, and wrangling out publicly what is now lobbied through privately.

CONGRESS is, after all, worth while. It is the custodian of the freedom and the order of America. Its work is important, and it should be an honor to be called to do it. It ought not to be necessary to comment on it, from the public viewpoint, as a man of parts on going there. It would not be if the men of parts already there would join in an effort to make it worth while, and it can be made so, from the personal standpoint.

SANTA MONICA, June 14.—Charles Powell, 26, alleged bank robber, was arrested here today. He had been sought since last March, when he is alleged to have held up and tied three employees of a Los Angeles bank and escaped with $2,800.

A woman companion, said to be Emma Smith, 45, was taken into custody also. She is said to have helped Powell spend the proceeds of the Los Angeles holdup.

At the time of the bank robbery, the bandit calmly drained the last drink from a bottle of whiskey and threw the bottle on the floor before walking out. Finger-prints on the bottle are said to correspond to those of Powell.

Illinois Floods Cause Enormous Loss

FRESH RAINS EXPECTED IN MIDDLE WEST

Water Six Feet Deep in Rockford Streets; Hundreds Driven from Homes

SIX DEATHS REPORTED

Terrific Downpour, Accompanied by Wind, Extends To Iowa and Nebraska

(By United Press)
CHICAGO, June 14.—Prospects of fresh rainfall today brought flood menaces to many sections of the middle west, already suffering the effects of a week-end cloudburst.

Government weather forecasters predicted more rain for most of the middle states today and tomorrow.

Streams were swollen to flood stages, streets of many cities were under several feet of water and basements were flooded. Damage by the wind and hail that accompanied the rain will run into millions of dollars.

Rockford, Ill., suffered the brunt of the storm. More than four inches of rain fell in that city in a period of an hour and a half, bringing the most severe flood conditions in 36 years.

500 Homes Flooded
Water six feet deep was run-streets and as many as 500 homes were flooded, forcing residents to seek protection on the roofs.

Bridges were swept away, one of them collapsing while two automobiles with seven passengers were crossing it.

The occupants were thrown into the swirling waters, but were rescued by other motorists. Their machines were washed away.

Property damage in Rockford alone will reach a half million dollars and the city faced further dangers as the waters of Rock river ascended to flood stage.

Two men were killed in the storm at Chicago, where wind, hail and electrical display accompanied the heaviest rainfall for 30 minutes in the city's history.

One man was struck by lightning and another was killed when he touched a high tension wire which had been downed.

Four Deaths in Iowa
Four deaths were reported in the state of Iowa and property damage was heavy, particularly affecting growing crops.

Transportation and communication facilities were disrupted.

Virtually every building in Steinauer, Neb., was damaged by a small tornado, which lasted only a few minutes.

Crops in some sections of the state suffered damage, but rainfall was badly needed throughout Nebraska and, with the exception of those places where the wind was too high, the downpour will bring benefits.

Two persons were injured at Edwardsville, Ill., when a high wind carried off the roof of a baseball park grandstand.

RAIN, HIGH WIND AND HAIL IN KANSAS
KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 14.—Rains, accompanied in some vicinities by high winds, hail and electric disturbances, had terminated today in this territory, bringing relief to crops and presaging reports of nominal damage from storm centers. General heavy rains were reported as far west as Newton, Kas., and as far north as St. Joseph, Mo., where a miniature cloudburst occurred, and southward into central Oklahoma.

Four Drown As Boat Capsizes
DALLAS, Tex., June 14.—Five persons lost their lives by drowning in Texas over the week-end.

Four of the five drowned at Magnolia beach, near Victoria, when a rowboat capsized.

The dead in the boat accident are Gladys Heradman, 15; Margaret Thames, 13; Leslie Orban, 22, and Ben Gillig Jr., 18.

Postponement Of 8 Wet Bills Advised

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The senate judiciary committee unanimously reported eight "wet" bills to the senate today, with the recommendation that action on them be indefinitely postponed. However, with many drys, including Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, and Glass, Democrat, Virginia, advocating a showdown vote on wet bills, it is likely that the senate will have an opportunity to express its sentiments on modification.

NEW WAY TO VOTE HARBOR BONDS SEEN

Creation of Improvement District for Repair of Jetty Being Considered

PETITION IS PREPARED
Annexation of Costa Mesa To Newport Beach First Step to Be Undertaken

ANNEXATION of Costa Mesa to Newport Beach and creation of a municipal improvement district for voting bonds for repair of the present jetty at the entrance to Orange County Harbor, is proposed in a movement started today by the city council of Newport Beach.

City Attorney Clyde Bishop this forenoon was engaged in preparation of an annexation petition to be circulated among property owners at Costa Mesa and it was expected the petition would be in the hands of circulators either late today or early tomorrow.

The petition is directed to the city council of Newport Beach, and asks incorporation of the Costa Mesa section within the city limits of Newport Beach. In order to make the petition effective, it must be signed by 25 per cent of the registered voters. Later, an election will be held in the district to vote on the proposition of annexation. Following annexation, a bond proposition would be submitted.

Means of Increasing Bonds
Pointing out that the present city of Newport Beach is now bonded to within 5 per cent of the 15 per cent of the assessed valuation permitted by law, Bishop said that by creating a municipal improvement district, and omitting a small portion of territory within the city limits of Newport Beach, it would be possible to again bond the city to 15 per cent of its assessed value.

The movement for creation of the larger corporate limits was initiated Saturday afternoon, at a meeting of the city council of the beach city, when Bishop was instructed to prepare the petition.

Immediate repair of the present jetty is considered by the beach community as absolutely necessary to continued use of the harbor by pleasure craft. It was pointed out that the matter of safety of vessels using the harbor was of paramount importance.

Hint at County Aid
It was suggested today that funds for repair of the present jetty and construction of the east jetty might be made available by a bond issue in the proposed improvement district and an appropriation of $150,000 or $200,000 by the board of supervisors.

In the estimate of costs prepared for submission of the county bond issue, defeated last Thursday, it was estimated it would require the expenditure of $70,000 for repair of the west jetty and $180,000 for building the east jetty. Other work and maintenance for four years brought the total to $650,000. It is the opinion of some of the harbor boosters that it now would require at least an additional $100,000 to take care of the harbor entrance work, because of conditions obtained now that were not in evidence when the original estimate was made.

Whether the proposed municipal improvement district could carry an issue of $500,000 on its assessed valuation is doubtful, according to statements by those posted on the subject.

Another Plan Suggested
While announcement of the plan for annexing Costa Mesa was of absorbing interest, discussions were being had today on a suggestion that another county election be called for an issue of $750,000 strictly for entrance work and to prepare the port as a pleasure harbor. It was suggested that this proposal be made to the county as a whole, with the understanding that, should more funds be needed later for development of the bay as a commercial harbor, they be raised by creation of a harbor district embracing the south part of the county.

According to Bishop, the board of supervisors cannot legally make an appropriation of funds for harbor work. It has authority only to appropriate funds for investigations by the harbor commission in developing data for its report.

Brigands Slay Seven and Flee with Loot

ATHENS, June 14.—Brigands attacking a car containing a bank shipment of 15,000,000 drachmas ($187,500), on the Preveza-Jannina road, killed seven members of the car's crew and escaped with the money. The shipment was being made by the National Bank of Greece. The driver, three gendarmes and three bank clerks escorting the shipment were slain.

JACK DEMPSEY ON TRIAL FOR FAST DRIVING

(By United Press)
CHOWCHILLA, Calif., June 14.—Jack Dempsey's ring opponent, Speed Law, struck the first blow here today, after the reluctant heavyweight champion had been compelled to enter the court battle, over which Justice R. G. Cornell is referee, when a motion of Dempsey to quash the speeding charge was effectively blocked by District Attorney Mason Bailey.

With the ringside crowded with spectators, Justice Cornell rang the gong—that is, pounded the gavel—at 10:40 a. m. today. Dempsey was then introduced to the crowd, when Justice Cornell asked him to stand up. The movie star, dressed in a natty blue suit and wearing a suggestion of a smile, stood up as about 500 spectators—all who could crowd into the courtroom—craned their necks.

The charge against Dempsey that he had willfully permitted his negro chauffeur to drive 68 miles an hour was read.

"Are you guilty or not guilty?" Justice Cornell, who sent Ralph De Pa, famous racer, to jail for speeding, asked.

"Not guilty," said Dempsey. "Do you wish to be tried by the court or a jury?"

"Jury," was Dempsey's court answer.

A venire of 30 names was called. At noon, when court adjourned, the jury box was tentatively filled. The penalty which the court may inflict in case of conviction on this charge runs as high as 180 days in jail, or $500 fine, or both, according to District Attorney Mason A. Bailey.

Selecting Jury For Magee Trial

LAS VEGAS, N. M., June 14.—Nineteen members of the regular petit jury panel of 23, some of whom will try Carl C. Magee, militant editor for manslaughter, were selected here today.

Immediately after Judge Luis Armijo convened the San Miguel county court for the June term, the impaneling of a jury was started. Out of 36 summons, 23 answered questions by District Attorney Chester A. Hunker and Judge Armijo, propounded to the talesmen both in English and Spanish.

Magee is on trial charged with manslaughter, in connection with the accidental shooting of John Lester, a bystander, during a fight between the editor and former Judge D. J. Leahy, last August.

Gusto Luzero translated the interrogations for the Spanish-American veniremen and in turn interpreted their replies for the judge and state's attorney.

Rubber Stamp Signature Used in Receipting for Cash, Exhibit Discloses

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 14.—Joseph R. Grundy, "Angel" of the George Wharton Pepper senatorial campaign in Pennsylvania, made 18 advances amounting to $307,575 to Pepper's campaign between April 9 and June 5.

This was shown to the senate primary expense investigating committee today, when W. H. Folwell, treasurer of Pepper's Philadelphia committee, furnished Grundy's receipts.

The fact that the 18 receipts were signed by Folwell's rubber stamp signature caused members of the committee to closely question him as to why such large sums of money were received for by such a process.

On European Tour
Folwell said he was in Europe much of the time and that the rubber stamps of his signature were affixed to receipts by Frank J. Gorman and Chester W. Hill, attaches of the headquarters.

"Look at them and see if they were not all made out at the same time," Chairman Reed said. "They all look fresh, the edges of the paper are fresh and they are all made out on the same size paper."

"I don't think so," Folwell replied. "Doesn't it look like the type-writing ribbon shows exactly the same color?" asked Senator King, Democrat, Utah.

"Well, it looks like the same type-writer, but not at the same time," Folwell replied. "Are you in the habit of letting your stamp signature be used when an amount of $307,575 is involved?" Reed asked.

Not Regular Practice
"No, I'm not accustomed to it," Folwell said. Gorman had handed the receipts to him in the committee room this morning.

Gorman and Hill are identified with Grundy in the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' association, of which Grundy is president.

The first receipt of Grundy's contributions was for $1850 on April 9—about 6 weeks before the primary.

South American Republic Steps Out When Denied Permanent Council Seat
MAY REASSURE SPAIN
Western Hemisphere Now Virtually Lost to International Body at Geneva
(By United Press)
GENEVA, June 14.—Brazil resigned from the League of Nations today, thereby compelling the league to recognize the fact that the western hemisphere was virtually lost to it.

The resignation resulted from Brazil's unsuccessful attempt to obtain a permanent seat on the League of Nations council. League hopes are placed on President-elect Luis, of Brazil, who succeeds President Bernardes next November. It is thought possible that Luis will return Brazil to league membership.

Foreign Minister Pacheco announced Brazil's resignation today in a cable to Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the league. By the terms of the league covenant, the resignation cannot become effective for two years.

League members said today that the league assembly would probably re-elect Brazil to non-permanent council membership for the two years she must remain a member.

The election would be a matter of courtesy, in addition to leaving the way open for Brazil's return.

The resignation, unless reconsidered, ends the league's immediate hopes of attaining world-wide universality and marks the beginning of a new effort to make it largely European. One of the results probably will be a diplomatic effort to assure Spain a permanent council seat, since Spain's withdrawal, which is now threatened, would prevent even European universality.

Salesgirls Dread Bargain Days

Louisa was tired. From morning until night she had been on her feet in the busy department store. No matter how she felt, she must serve her customers with a smile. Her head throbbed and her feet ached. Week after week, she felt her strength ebbing until she was in a run-down condition, not fit to work.

"My mother suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound," she writes. "I took only three bottles and it brought me about all right." Through the Vegetable Compound, she found better health to do her work and she told the other girls about it.

That was several years ago. Louisa is now Mrs. L. J. Van Dyke of 1245 Spring St., Morrell Park, Baltimore, Md. She is the mother of three healthy, active children. She says that she found the tonic effect of the Vegetable Compound helpful to her during this entire period.

Every working girl knows that to do her work properly and easily she must have good health. She can not afford to lose time from her work.

Girls who suffer from a run-down condition should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Baker was arrested yesterday by State Motorcycle Officer Ernest Sawyer. He is charged with speeding 50 miles an hour on the state highway. In accordance with previous sentences meted out by Justice of the Peace Kenneth Morrison, Baker probably will receive a five-day jail term.

Readings and One-Act Plays Will Be Presented in Entertainment

Admirers of the clever work done by young children under the direction of competent instructors today were anticipating the presentation of readings and one-act plays by the Peter Pan players, directed by Estelle Card Beeman, accompanied by musical numbers by the Toy Symphony, under the supervision of its founder, Miss Carolyn Haughton. The pretty event will be staged in the patio of the Y.M.C.A. and today for the flag exercises to be given in the Elks clubhouse at 8 o'clock tonight.

The American Legion, Boy Scouts, G.A.R. and other patriotic organizations of the city are co-operating with the Elks in presenting the program in observance of Flag day. McKay pointed out that the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks is the only organization known to require subordinate lodges to hold flag day exercises, and proper observances of the day is required of each lodge, even if no one is present but the officers.

The ritualistic services of the order will be presented by the officers of the Santa Ana lodge, with the history of the flag being given by Attorney Franklin West. The patriotic address will be made by Attorney Baum Z. McKinney. Music will be furnished by the Stearns trio, of Costa Mesa.

Declaring that the services will be open to the public, McKay today expressed the hope that a large number of residents of the city would avail themselves of the opportunity to properly observe the day.

Got Wife Out of Jail, But Now He Sleeps In Cell

When Claude Morris, 33, of 501 Seventeenth street, San Diego, came to Santa Ana to get his wife out of the Orange county jail a short time ago, little did he realize that he soon would be in the same jail and that his wife would be the cause of his imprisonment.

Morris, according to reports at the county jail, recently secured parole for his wife from the jail, where she was serving a sentence for possession of liquor.

Today, Morris is in jail, charged by his wife, with non-support. Mrs. Morris is said to reside in Anaheim.

How to keep the neighbors' chickens out of a garden is the question which confronts M. J. Logue, 1202 South Ross street, according to a report on file at police headquarters. Logue has appealed to the police to help him. He declares that chickens, owned by neighbors, do much damage to his garden.

Two Mexican boys were reported to be stealing old tires and other articles, which they found lying around garages and homes in the vicinity of 1518 French street, yesterday, according to a report at police headquarters.

J. D. Beard, 28, 519 East Washington street, is in the Orange county jail awaiting trial on a charge of breaking glass on the pavement and destroying evidence, according to a report at the police station. Beard was arrested by Officer Bond at 3 o'clock this morning.

George Watkins, 50, of 340 East Amerige street, Fullerton, was in the Orange county jail this morning, being held for Los Angeles authorities on a misdemeanor charge. Watkins was arrested yesterday by Chief Criminal Deputy Sheriff Ed McClellan.

REGISTER LIBEL SUIT IS SETTLED

As the result of a settlement at a nominal figure, the action for $100,000 damages for libel, brought by Walter E. Baker, of Merced, formerly of Santa Ana, against the Register Publishing company, was dismissed in Judge Ames' court this morning at the request of the plaintiff's attorneys, Edward Bickmore, of Merced, and Traft, Odell and Tanner, of Los Angeles. Head-Rutten and Seovel appeared for the Register.

The action for libel was based on an article appearing in the

HARBOR BONDS VOTE CANVASS IS UNDER WAY

With completion of the canvass by the board of supervisors of the returns of the special harbor bond election, the county harbor commission automatically ceases to exist, under provisions of the county harbor act, enacted in 1915 by the state legislature.

The supervisors were engaged today in canvassing the returns and were scheduled to complete the official count late this afternoon.

Should it be decided to call another county bond election, it would be necessary to appoint a new commission. However, in the opinion of District Attorney A. P. Nelson, a new commission could resubmit the report filed by the commission that became defunct today, and save the expense incurred in its preparation.

Creation of a new commission would have to be done on a petition, signed by 15 per cent of the freeholders and electors.

While the canvass in progress this afternoon indicated that the majority by which the two propositions lost would be changed, there is no possibility of the final result being changed.

The issues were based on a two-thirds majority of all the votes cast. Many of the election boards failed to record, in their semi-official returns, the number of ballots cast, and for this reason it was not possible to get a check on the total number of votes cast. The figures given in newspaper reports were obtained by multiplying the "no" vote by two and subtracting the "yes" vote.

Register in February, 1925. In that article appeared an interview with Fred Marsile, who, as a deputy sheriff, had made a trip to San Quentin. He stated that he had seen Baker in San Quentin. The Register quoted Marsile as making that statement. Later, a statement was published by the Register from a cousin of Baker refuting Marsile's statement. According to an investigation made by the Register, Baker was without doubt employed by the Merced Irrigation district at the time Marsile thought he saw him in San Quentin and could not have been in San Quentin.

Baker has an action for damages pending against Marsile. That trial is set for Wednesday.

FAST DRIVING CURE FAILS TO CONVINCE COP

Speeding 55 miles an hour around corners and over hill and dale is what a physician prescribed for Mrs. C. S. Smith, wife of a prominent Long Beach man, according to a story told to Motorcycle Officer "Pat" Hurd, of the state traffic squad, when he arrested Mrs. C. A. Hickman, driver of the Smith machine, yesterday.

Mrs. Hickman, of 752 Coronado street, Long Beach, told Hurd that physicians had ordered a change for Mrs. Smith, who is said to be suffering from a nervous breakdown. Mrs. Hickman told the officer that she was giving Mrs. Smith three prescribed change by driving her over the highways at a high rate of speed. The plan failed to soften the heart of the officer and Mrs. Hickman is scheduled to appear before Justice Jack Landell, San Juan Capistrano, Friday.

Wesley E. Owen, of 1515 West Eighth street, Los Angeles, was handed a ticket for speeding 56 miles an hour. Owen also failed to present an operator's license, according to Hurd, who made the arrest.

Miss Hazel Magnuson, 1504 East Second street, Long Beach, was arrested and charged with speeding 50 miles an hour on the Newport boulevard yesterday by State Motorcycle Officer Frank Vaughn. The girl told Vaughn that she thought a man was following her and trying to flirt with her. Vaughn also handed a ticket to H. E. Hunt, of 2331 Granada street, Los Angeles, charging him with speeding 55 miles an hour. Both Miss Magnuson and Hunt are scheduled to appear Friday before Justice Kenneth Morrison.

Senator King asked if Folwell did not expect to get his refunds from Pennsylvania manufacturers. "Yes," he admitted. "They were members of Grundy's Manufacturers' association?" King asked. "Some were and some weren't," the witness countered. "Name one of these individuals," said Reed. "I can't recall from memory," Folwell protested.

"But they made contributions to the Harding campaign?" Reed insisted. "Yes," Folwell said. "Was one of them Andrew W. Mellon?" Reed inquired. "No, sir," Folwell said. "Were any of them members of the Mellon family?" Reed asked. "No sir," Folwell said.

MYSTERY WOMAN HUNTED AS AIMEE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 14.—

A woman answering the description of Aimee Semple McPherson was sought by the police here today, in the belief that she might be the missing Los Angeles evangelist. Reports to the authorities were that the woman registered under the name of Nason at a lodging house here Saturday night. Mrs. Annie P. Markham, the proprietor, noted the resemblance between her guest and published pictures of the missing evangelist. "You're not Mrs. McPherson, the evangelist, are you?" Mrs. Markham asked. The woman seemed flustered, according to the landlady, but said: "No. But why do you ask? It so happens that I knew Mrs. McPherson very well, and I was in Angelus temple when it was announced that she had been drowned."

During the few hours the guest remained, Mrs. Markham said, she talked almost constantly about religion, and it was this which caused her to report to the police.

At midnight, Mrs. Markham said, the woman came to her and told her she had located a brother here and was going to pay him a visit. She then paid her bill and disappeared, according to the landlady.

The girl was injured when thrown from the machine in which she was riding. Her skull was fractured, it is believed, when she struck a telephone pole.

14 ENCOUNTER TRAGIC DEATHS ON WEST COAST

(By United Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14.—Tragic death took the comparatively light toll of 14 lives in Pacific coast states over the week end, reports to the United Press disclosed today.

At least 50 persons received injuries, the majority from automobile accidents. About six were expected to die.

The automobile claimed 10 of the 14. Four met death near San Francisco, in a single mishap. Riding in an enclosed car, they were drowned when the heavy machine plunged over a bridge into a slough.

Near Seattle, a 12-year-old boy was killed when the unbroken horse he was riding plunged into a wire fence and fell.

The week end was unusual in the absence of suicides, according to United Press reports. Earl Smith, a young San Franciscan separated from his wife, took poison in his second attempt at suicide, but was expected to recover.

Deaths, by states, were reported as follows:

Oregon

Klamath Falls—Wilfred Brookfield, 30, automobile crash.

Washington

SEATTLE—Alberta Legge, 15-year-old Seattle high school girl, drowned in Sunset falls; Walter Young, 12, killed when unbroken horse he was riding ran into wire fence and fell.

California

San Diego—Joe Sharp, auto accident.

Sacramento—John Boke, 57, killed in hydraulic pump.

Martinez—George P. Jones, 37; Donald Wright, 18; Joseph Frazier, 18, and George Lincoln, 19, drowned when their closed automobile plunged into slough.

San Jose—John Givich, 47, automobile struck by train; John David, 30, Los Angeles, automobile struck by train.

San Francisco—William Harter, 50, found drowned in San Francisco bay; J. R. Hollins, died from injuries received in automobile accident.

No Baby in World Given Such Importance As This Tiny Mite

LONDON, June 14.—The most important baby in the world is sleeping and cooing and yelling her days away in London's richest basement.

Millions of other babies, gurgling in their baths each morning, inspire doting mothers with rosy dreams of their future. There may be among them a Thomas Edison, a D'Annunzio and a Sarah Bernhardt, to say nothing of two or three American presidents.

But for the time being, the tiny Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary has things all her own way. There is no other infant that can compete with her. Others are important for what they may become, but the princess is important for what she is—the sole living heir of the new generation of the House of Windsor.

Watched by Entire Empire

Because she carries in her small person the delicate spark which means the continuance of England's royal line, her babyhood will be watched by the anxious eyes of an empire.

Only three lives stand between her and the throne—those of King George, the Prince of Wales and her father, the Duke of York. Should the Prince of Wales die childless and her father have no sons, Elizabeth will ascend the throne, as the sixth English queen to hold it in her own right.

Her queenly predecessors are Mary—Bloody Mary—who acceded in 1553; Elizabeth, 1558; Mary II, 1689; Anne, 1702; and Victoria, 1837. Whereas Elizabeth is third in line for the crown, Victoria in her babyhood was fifth.

If she succeeds to the throne, her husband will not have the title of king, but only that of prince consort, as in the case of Victoria's German husband.

Not only does the new princess hold an excellent chance for the queenship, but she also represents to the nation the last link in their royal house, Princess Mary's children being regarded as continuing the House of Lascelles.

Has Unique Privileges

The little Elizabeth already has privileges not accorded to the Lascelles babies, who are commoners under the law, while she holds the rank of princess of the blood.

The birth of this child to the Duke and Duchess of York unites the history and glamor of the House of Windsor with the romance and poetry of Ancient Scotland. Her maternal grandfather, Earl Strathmore, owns Glamis castle, scene of Shakespeare's "Macbeth," and traces to Robert Bruce and other heroes of earliest Scotch history.

Superstitious subjects here are recalling how time is bringing events within reach of Shakespeare's old prophecy in Macbeth. Macbeth himself was thane of Glamis, the forefather of the Strathmore line and of the present royal baby. Banquo, talking the Macbeth about the witch's prophecy to them, says, "It was said it should not stand in thy posterity, but that myself should be the root and father of many kings." If this witchery holds good, the Princess Elizabeth will not become a queen.

Yawns Through Christening

The rosy-cheeked, sleepy-eyed child yawned through her christening ceremony the other day in the presence of the king and queen and the noblest peers of the realm, careless of prophecies and thrones.

She was born, not in a palace but in her mother's girlhood bedroom in a Bruton street mansion, and her pleasures at present are those which any London ragamuffin shares with her—daily pram rides in the public parks.

PIONEER S. A. MAN ANSWERS DEATH'S CALL

John Johnston, 80 years old, for 40 years a resident of Orange county and one of the well known pioneers of Santa Ana, passed away at 7 o'clock Sunday morning, in the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. Edmund Snow, 407 West First street, after an illness of several months' duration.

Mr. Johnston was born on Nov. 20, 1845, at Campbellford, Ont., Canada. His parents were early Scotch settlers in Canada, and from them the son inherited many noble qualities which he retained through life.

Mr. Johnston was reared in Canada and, when 19 years of age, he removed to Cedar county, Iowa, where he was married to Miss Laura Safley, whose parents were among the first settlers of Iowa, her father having located there in 1836. Mrs. Johnston passed away in 1914.

In 1886, Mr. Johnston and his family came to Santa Ana, where he had since made his home. He purchased a ranch on North Main street, which he operated for many years, and which he owned at the time of his death.

Surviving him are two sons, W. Dean Johnston, Santa Ana, and Clifford Johnston, Fillmore, and two daughters, Mrs. C. W. Tighe, Fillmore, and Mrs. J. Edmund Snow, Santa Ana.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock, Tuesday morning, at the Smith and Tutill parlors. Dr. W. E. Roberts, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will officiate. Interment will be in Fairhaven cemetery.

One railroad handled 26,000 cars of dressed meats last year, with loss and damage claims averaging only 25 cents per car.

MANY SANTA ANA BRIDES MADE SATURDAY THEIR WEDDING DAY

Saturday, June 12, was indeed a popular day among Santa Ana brides, many of whom, chose it as their Day of Days, upon which to enter into the new career of wife and home-maker. Surely the stars were in auspicious positions, and the slender silver crescent of the new moon, which shone for a brief period in the evening sky, promised health, wealth and happiness to the light-hearted young people who were beginning their new lives under her kindly reign.

Linsbard-Eggert
RACED with beautiful flowers all in tones of pink, the pretty new home of Mrs. E. H. Linsbard on West Sixteenth street, Los Angeles, was chosen by her granddaught, Miss Julia Linsbard, as the setting for her wedding at 3 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, to Henry Eggert of Los Angeles.

Only the close relatives of the young people were present at the ceremony, which was conducted by an old family friend, the Rev. Carl Michael of the German Lutheran church. Miss Linsbard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Linsbard, 415 West First street. Mr. Linsbard's brother is a member of the firm of the Redondo Floral company and took all charge of the decorations for the nuptials. The rose tints were used to harmonize with the chosen costume of the bride whose brunette charm was intensified by her chiffon gown of French rose. The lovely ensemble was completed with delicate pink kid shoes and hose, and a French rose hat, while her flowers were deep-tinted roses combined with lilies of the valley in shower effect.

Mrs. G. V. Linsbard chose rose flowers in order that her gown might harmonize with her daughter's chosen color scheme, and blending beautifully were the delicate orchid tints of the gown worn by the hostess, Mrs. Linsbard, sr.

Wedding refreshments were served during the interval of congratulations following the wedding, and then the guests, led by Miss Gertrude Linsbard and Howard D. Cook, accompanied the new Mr. and Mrs. Eggert to the Southern Pacific station to speed them on their journey. A few enterprising friends had secured the opportunity earlier, of adorning their drawing-room with garlands and bridal placards, so their journey to New Orleans would be blazoned to New Orleans, Mr. and Mrs. Eggert will travel by boat to New York City and after a leisurely tour of eastern cities will return to California by rail, stopping at Niagara Falls, Chicago and other interesting points.

They will establish a home in Los Angeles where Mr. Eggert is head ticket agent with the Pacific Electric. He has a beautiful home on Crenshaw boulevard to which he will take his bride later, but had previously leased it for a period of two years to the Austrian consul.

Rhodes-Heard
EFFICIATING at the wedding of his own daughter, added solemnity and beauty to the nuptials conducted by the Rev. Moffett Rhodes, pastor of the Episcopal church, when on Saturday evening, at 7:30 o'clock, Miss Edna Rhodes became the bride of Joseph S. Heard of Taft.

It was a quiet home wedding with a little group of close friends bidden to share in the joys of the occasion. The Rhodes home at 601 North Broadway was made a fairy bower by the lavish use of Shasta daisies.

The snowy blossoms formed an effective setting for the bride whose costume was in flame georgette and who carried rosebuds of deeper tone, combined with lilies of the valley. The ceremony was made extremely impressive by the father who spoke the words joining his daughter's life with another. It was shared by a friendly group composed, in addition to members of the family, of the Misses Eunice Jones, Verma Jones, Rebecca Oglesby, Hester Covington, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Hatfield, Mrs. F. L. Watson and Cleve Sedoris.

After an informal reception hour during which appropriate refreshments were served, the new Mr. and Mrs. Heard left for Laguna Beach where they will spend their honeymoon. Later they will go to Taft where Mr. Heard is in the oil business.

Miss Rhodes was a graduate of the university at Berkeley with the class of 1924 and for the past two years has been teaching at Taft where she will be greeted by a host of warm friends when she returns as a young matron.

Robinson-Borchers
Louis Philip Robinson of Trabuco, has issued announcements to relatives and friends of the marriage of his sister, Miss Hester Robinson of Buenos Aires, Argentina, to Harry J. Borchers, on May 21 last. Mr. and Mrs. Borchers will reside at 387 Padias street, Montevideo, Uruguay.

Miss Robinson is the youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter K. Robinson of Trabuco and Santa Ana, a graduate of the Santa Ana high school, Stanford and University of Wisconsin. Being employed on the New York Sun, Miss Robinson received an offer to go to Buenos Aires four years ago having charge of advertising and publicity for I. Smith and company, Inc.

which culminated in the charming wedding of Saturday, June 12, which united the two popular young people.

Because of illness in the family, the utmost simplicity prevailed at the nuptials, and the guest list was confined only to immediate members of the Paul and Browning families.

Hotel Virginia in Long Beach was chosen as the scene of the ceremony, one of the private dining-rooms having been reserved for the event. Seven o'clock was the chosen hour, and the Rev. Perry Erick Schrock, pastor of the local Congregational church, was officiating minister. Graceful fern fronds and an array of pastel tinted flowers formed a background for the young people who were unattended save for the fact that the bride's young sister-in-law, Mrs. Cassius Paul, the former Miss Pauline Bell, stepped forward to take the bridal bouquet when the magic wedding circle was proffered. Mrs. Paul wore the beautiful gown in which she spoke her wedding vows last fall in the First Baptist church.

Miss Paul made a charming picture in her costume of white satin whose circular skirt was banded with Chantilly lace over maline and adorned with hand-made flowers of self-material. The frock was fashioned over a foundation of shell pink satin, giving an elusive rose tone to the soft folds. Hand made flowers. The beautiful veil, falling from a bandeau of orange blossoms, was the "something borrowed" of her costume and had been worn first by Mrs. Cassius Paul. A charming sentiment was attached to her shower bouquet of snowy syringa and jasmine, centered with an orchid-like pink gladioli. For the flowers were all culled from her mother's own garden. At the same time, the senior Mrs. Paul had exerted all her skill with flowers, to coax the first bloom of the season from a gardenia, and the resultant blossom adorned the buttonhole of the formal dress of the bridegroom, Mr. Browning.

To conform to the ancient superstition, Miss Paul wore, in addition to the borrowed veil "something old" in the form of a necklace of brilliant white sapphires worn by her mother in her girlhood, and "something blue" as a wee knot of blue satin on the rose-pink foundation. She was given in marriage by her father, Dr. J. E. Paul, leaning on his arm as she took her place with the groom, before the Rev. Mr. Schrock.

Dainty Louise Browning, wee daughter of Mr. Browning, carried the wedding ring on a satin pillow and was a pretty picture in her ruffled little frock of delicate pink tints.

Following the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served at the flower-decked tables, and an elaborate bride's cake was cut and served by young Mrs. Browning. Late in the evening, the happy couple took their departure in a shower of rice, for a motor honeymoon to the wherever fancy led them. The bride chose for traveling, a smart costume of Harding blue crepe in bolero style over pale pink bodice. Her cloak, hat, shoes, gloves and bag were in gray.

Upon their return they will be at home to a host of friends at the Browning ranch home in the Red Hill Groves.

McNaught-Russell
The beautiful home of the Rev. Dr. Raymond C. Brooks, Claremont, Miss Laura Marie McNaught, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. McNaught, 701 West Fifth street, was married to Sheldon T. Russell, youngest son of Professor W. T. and Mrs. Russell of Claremont, at 4 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, with Dr. Brooks officiating.

The bride was gown in a charming costume of peach taffeta with tulle trimming and carried a beautiful bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Her going away dress was blue georgette with parchment accessories.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Mrs. Smith Russell, sister-in-law of the groom, while Mr. Russell, brother of the groom, served as best man.

The double ring ceremony was used. Only the parents and a few near relatives were present.

The bride is a native daughter of Santa Ana as is also her mother. Her father has been a resident for 36 years.

BUSINESS WOMEN CONCLUDE ENTHUSIASTIC CONVENTION

Swept by a new enthusiasm and interest as the first concrete result of the Southern District B. and P. W. convention just concluded yesterday in Anaheim, Santa Ana Business and Professional Women were today in readiness to apply to their own club the new theories and plans discussed at the convention, as were their club sisters throughout the Southland.

Extending from San Diego on the south to Santa Barbara on the north, the district sent representatives from each of its clubs until the crowd assembled at different sessions of the convalescence (held in the Anaheim high school auditorium) reached several hundred in attendance. Too much credit can not be given Helen Harden, retiring president of the hostess club, and convention chairman, for her efforts to make the convention a success, the interest manifested coming as a direct tribute to her and her plans.

Yesterday morning's breakfast, held in a secluded corner of the water park, with its flowers and water pools adding charm to the scene, was one of the outstanding features, and as a delightful climax to the session, both business and social. Dr. Jessica Raiche presided as mistress of ceremonies and conducted a lively game of introductions which served to make everyone thoroughly acquainted in truly feminine fashion—by identifying wearers of carefully described frocks.

Throughout the enjoyment of the course breakfast, a group of pretty young girls, garbed in white, dispensed ukulele music and a trio of steel guitars. After breakfast, presidents of Orange county clubs, including Santa Ana's own Louise Kaiser, held a meeting in which the new county vice president was named, the unanimous choice being Miss Harden. Other informal board meetings were also held during the interval of preparation for a courtesy ride over Orange county roads to favorite spots of beauty, notably the county park.

The breakfast was a fitting sequel to the sociability of the preceding evening session, when over 300 enthusiastic business women banqueted in the Elks' club and greeted the new district officers, elected at the afternoon session. These were Mrs. George L. Winters Upland, president; Lou LaBlanc Whitcomb, Business Women's Civic club, Los Angeles, vice president; Edna Olive of the same club, secretary; Ethel Carroll, Oxnard, treasurer, and Margaret Swope, San Diego, auditor.

In her inaugural address, Mrs. Winters called attention to the fact that this was the first time a president had been chosen from other than a Los Angeles club and spoke of the effect this would have in effecting a closer co-operation between large and small organizations, with pronounced benefit to each.

Miss Sue Brobst, retiring president, also made an appreciative talk of the many courtesies and aids extended her, and was presented with a handsome gold-mounted gavel stand to accompany the gavel presented her previously. Miss Rosalind Bates, editor of the Southern Sun, made the presentation, at the same time bestowing upon Miss Harden a gold pencil and pen set, and upon the Santa Monica club, the press trophy, a handsome silver loving cup for the best display of printed publicity during the year. Honorable mention on publicity, was also accorded Upland, Covina, Hollywood, Burbank, Los Angeles and Orange.

Santa Monica extended invitation for the 1927 district convention; club songs were given, and then Mrs. Harden introduced the evening program with the club surprise—one from each Orange county club. These were followed by a musical program and a witty talk by Harry A. James, a Fitzgerald artist.

Santa Ana was complimented upon the cleverness of the sketch presented, which employed all representatives of the club present. The familiar Sir Walter Scott poem, "Young Lochinvar," was burlesqued in highly entertaining fashion. The poem was read with all seriousness by Eleanor Young Elliott, while the scenes were enacted in ridiculous fashion by the others in kilts, tam o' shanters and plaids.

Young Lochinvar himself was portrayed by Miss Elaine Wharton; the "Fair Ellen" by Minnie Mayhill in bridal attire; the "poor craven bridegroom," Kathleen Owens; father, Mary Smart; mother, Mayme Brightwell; flower girl, Elva Albrecht; cup-bearer, Louise Kaiser; piper, Lee Patton, and the remaining members comprising the "kismen." The other Santa Ana members included Ruth Ellis, Mabel Larrick, Teresa McDonour, Olive Lopez, Vanche Etienne Plumb, Martha Briggs and one guest, Miss Pearl Nicholson.

The local organization felt especially gratified at the co-operation extended by civic and business enterprises of the city, in contributing to the souvenirs for each of approximately 400 guests. These included rich and delicious chocolates, donated by the Ketter confectionery, popular Taylor sweetmeats, the gift of the junior division, Chamber of Commerce and post cards and colorful folders, from Robert L. Bishy, manager of St. Ann's Inn, the Monday meeting place of the Business Women, for goodnight luncheon. The Ketter chocolates were a token of appreciation from the management of that popular confectionery where the board members meet every Thursday for luncheon and board meeting.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA—Nathan Hale

—BY REDNER

Old Glory, as Betsy Ross fashioned it, was then approved, and she received a contract to make all the government flags. She continued in this business nearly 50 years, and her daughter carried on until 1857. The flag remained unchanged until some time in 1795, when Vermont and Kentucky were admitted to the Union. Then two more stars and two more stripes were added.

The last change affecting Old Glory was embodied in an act of Congress, passed April 4, 1818, and provided for the return to the original 13 horizontal red and white stripes.

It also called for the addition of a new star on the admission of every new state. Under this ruling, our present American flag now contains 48 stars and 13 stripes.

Betsy Ross lived to see these few changes made in her original flag. She died in 1836 and, 62 years later, in 1898, the Betsy Ross Memorial Association was formed. This organization, by 1905, had converted the old Ross home into public property, and the famous structure today is indicated by a sign reading, "Birthplace of Old Glory."

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Summer

Women and Homes

Are you a properly treated wife? If so, your home equipment will include one carpet sweeper, one hair broom, one chemical floor mop, one self wringing mop, one wool mop for walls, one weighted mop for waxed floors, one long handled scrub brush, dustless dusters, knife and fork cleaner, metal polishes, one power unit (to whip eggs, cream, mix batter, knead bread, grind meat), one sewing machine, one grill, one electric fan, one electric pad, one electric heater, one electric washing machine (or water power), one wringer, one clothes dryer, one electric iron, one wash-board, one clothes sprinkler, shirt and stocking drying forms, one ironing machine, folding ironing board, table, folding sleeve-board, bread mixer, dish dryer, electric dish washer, cake mixer, steam pressure cooker. The list comes from a national Household Institute. We can imagine it furnishing grounds for some "steep thousand divorce cases!"

The Ideal Hostess

I have stumbled across these rules so well that they become unconditioned ingredients in the recipe for an ideal hostess. Can you qualify? Learn the mechanics of the home, the operations of every time and labor-saving device and have physical and mental strength for your guests. Budget the family income and have funds for entertaining. Study human nature; know your guests. Be self-effacing, kind, considerate. Lead the conversation along pleasant lines and patch up differences of opinion. Ignore any mishaps or mistakes. Be sympathetic, poised and natural.

Wedding Gifts

If one is merely a formal acquaintance of a bride and groom and is merely invited to the church ceremony and not to the house reception or breakfast, a gift is not a social obligation.

Faces and Sunburn

The summer girl is between the w. k. diabolic one and the deep blue sea when it comes to keeping her beauty. If you go without a hat, some beauty experts tell her, your hair will grow mellow with red-gold lights. If you go without a hat, say other beautifiers, your skin will grow red as a lobster, dry as Melba toast, and brown as a nut. I lean to the latter faction, but I suggest the use of a vanishing cream before swimming or hiking in the sun, cream cleanse at night, and a face bath in sour milk or cream.

Your Home's Beauty

All good home color schemes, say the decorators, use complementary hues rather than analogous harmonies. Thus, green, blue, yellow, orange and red and purple are prime colors. If blue is a basic color in a home scheme, green and purple would be analogous colors, but orange is a complementary color and would be much better with the blue than the purple or green. Study color schemes for their lesson in the use of colors.

Funny Kidlet Stories

"Aren't there any funny stories to read to the youngsters? It seems to me that every time I pick up a fairy book, the story's all about the cruel stepmother who fed the lovely girl poison, and the king who put his son in the caldron of boiling oil—and all that stuff!" writes "A Mother" to me.

Then you don't know Pyle's "Paper and Salt," a book of stories, or Bryant's "Stories To Tell Children," which includes the rollicking tale of "Epaminondas"; Thorne-Thompson's "East O' the Sun and West O' the Moon," with its story of "Husband Who Was to Mind the House," and Wiggins' "Tales of Laughter."

A Thought

But the meek shall inherit the earth, and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace.—Ps. 37:11.

Be very sure that no man will learn anything at all unless he learn at first humility.—Owen Meredith.

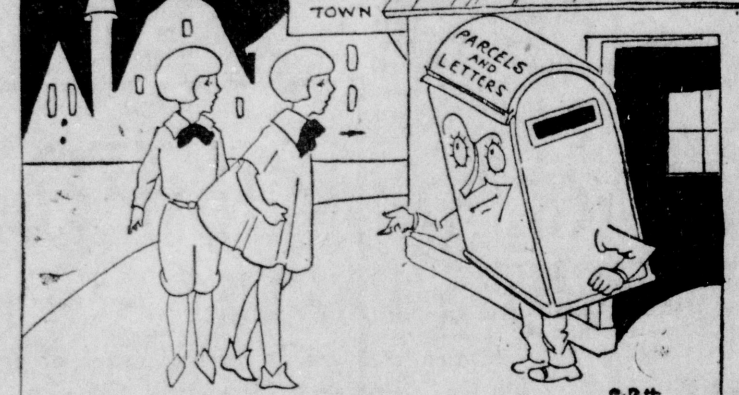

GOOD SILHOUETTE

Straightline coats of metallic cloth or lame, lined only with chiffon or crepe de chine are liked for evening wear. They are charming with pastel colored chiffon frocks.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NO. 13—NIP-AND-TUCK TOWN

The Twins looked very much surprised to see so strange a person

"I'm going to be a track," said the pink ticket in Nancy's pocket, sticking out its head and looking around with its pink eyes. "It says on my back that I am to take you to the next station, and I'm going to do what it says."

"What is the next station?" asked Nick.

"It is called Nip-and-Tuck town," said the ticket.

"Is it in Drowsy Land?" asked Nick, who was still feeling around in his pockets to make sure that none of the vanished money had remained. He and Nancy had found bushels of it, you know, and suddenly—puff—it disappeared in a second.

"Yes, Nip-and-Tuck Town is in Drowsy Land," said the ticket. "You will have some queer adventures there."

The ticket began to slide out of Nancy's pocket, and then it laid itself on the ground like a track—a long, long track that stretched as far as they could see, like a railroad; the black lines on the sides became the rails and the lines of printing became the ties.

The little back patch with the date on it turned into a car, and the Twins got in.

Then the little car rolled along and rolled along and rolled along on the pink ticket track and finally it stopped at the station of Nip-and-Tuck Town.

"I wonder why they call this place Nip-and-Tuck Town," said Nick.

"Because it is nip to get in and tuck to get out," said the station agent, which happened to be a large mailbox marked, "Parcels and Letters."

The Twins looked very much surprised to see so strange a person, but everything was so different in Drowsy Land that they were beginning to get used to it.

"We're looking for Inco, our china elephant that ran off, and Flops, my toy clown who ran off with him," said Nick. "Did you see them?"

"Did they come by rail or by mail?" said the mailbox.

Nancy and Nick looked at each other. They knew the runaways did sound too silly to say so. "We're not quite sure," said Nancy.

"Well," said the mailbox kindly, "I shall look in all my letters and newspapers—perhaps there is news of him there."

The mailbox took a key out of his pockets and unlocked his front door. Out spilled a hundred letters and papers and about six parcels! (To Be Continued)

BABIES ARE BARGAINS—CYNTHIA

By CYNTHIA GREY

Bob and Winnie have been married three years. Bob is thirty and Winnie is twenty-seven. They haven't any children. Bob is making "only $75 a week," and they "really don't think it would be right to have children when they cannot give them all the advantages of life."

Then too, they are sure "there is plenty of time," and in a few years they will have saved more and prepared for the heavy burdens of parenthood.

In the meantime, Bob goes on spending his money on night clubs and clothes, and Winnie wastes a pretty penny in her frivolous ways with her set of young married women. They have not saved a cent in a year.

When I see such cases I am not wrought up over the selfishness of our youth, or its failure to realize responsibilities to the race.

After all, there is nothing compulsory about having children. Nobody really owes it to society to propagate his kind. The race is not in danger of running out because of people like Bob and Winnie.

But I do feel pity for those young people, with their short-sightedness concerning their own welfare. I pity them for missing the happiness of children and the stimulus that children give for work and achievement.

A woman who has valiantly reared her child without help from anyone, and has gained a measure of professional success for herself, on the side, said to me, "My best recipe for ambition is, 'Have a child to support.' I should never have amounted to anything if I hadn't been forced to try, for my daughter's sake."

Bob and Winnie talk at length of the "cost of babies." And yet the money that they fritter away in empty pleasures would easily support a child, and they would get more fun out of the spending of it than they now get from their golf clubs and their theatre parties.

The truth of the matter is that they don't want a baby at all, because their scale of values is topsyturvy. And they temporize by saying, "We'll wait until we can afford it."

BRIDE AND GROOM

Oh, bride and groom, the day is fair
And love is singing everywhere
And friends are many, smiling now
The while you take your marriage vow,
But life is made of joy and care
And love has many things to bear.

God bless the home which you shall build
May it with happiness be filled,
May you set forth this lovely June
To many a golden honeymoon;
But storms will come, as old hearts know,
And love must weather many a blow.

Oh, bride and groom, for you my prayer
Is not that every day be fair,
For that could never be. I pray
That love shall last, what'er the day,
Through all that comes of grief and gain
And hurt and care may love remain.

BEAUTY CHATS

DANDRUFF TREATMENT

If you are suffering from dandruff there are two ways of fighting the disease, for it is one caused by a germ and it can be transmitted by one person to another like any infectious disease through the medium of brushes and combs used on an infected and a clean head. You can fight it by antiseptics and by generous use of oil.

My suggestion is to rub the scalp one or two days before the shampoo with a liberal amount of olive oil or crude oil applied hot and rubbed until the scalp has taken up a very generous amount of it. This should be followed by a shampoo either with a medicated soap or with tar soap or sulphur soap, both of which have highly antiseptic properties.

The soap should be thoroughly rinsed out as usual, and the last warm rinse water should contain a few drops of some good antiseptic. When the hair is dry the scalp should once more be rubbed with hot oil, which should be left on if possible for a whole week, when the process is repeated. At the end of these nine days you would probably find the scalp free of dandruff. If you have an electric vibrator and can work the oil in to the scalp with this it will be more effective than a hand massage.

Effective as this treatment is, many people do not wish to try it because for nine days the hair will look oily and messy. I would suggest a sulphur ointment treatment to be given the night before and if possible a whole day before the weekly shampoo. Buy an ounce of flower of sulphur and mix it with lard, cold cream or olive oil, part the hair in different places and rub along the parting. Rub thoroughly, for it is a heavy ointment and difficult to get in the scalp.

Next day shampoo in very hot water and soap, and to make perfect certain that you get all grease and dirt from the scalp, scrub the scalp with a small stiff brush.

Mrs. P. C.—The only effect sage tea will have on your white hair will be to discolor it so that it will look dingy or of a shade like weak tea. You can use henna if this color is suited to you, and since henna is not a dye, it will neither injure your hair or affect your health. A little bluing added to the henna will throw it off the red.

You can consult a specialist about dish shade.

Try This Ointment

your hair and see if the color can be restored, and if it cannot, you can attain considerable distinction in your appearance with white hair at 38 years of age.

MENUS for the FAMILY

By SISTER MARY

Breakfast—Orange juice, asparagus omelet, graham muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Baked hominy, crisp broiled bacon, cress and mint sandwiches, caramel cookies, rhubarb sauce, milk, tea.

Dinner—Casserole of mutton, boiled new potatoes, beet greens, lemon sponge pie, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

Since no cereal is served for breakfast a cereal main dish is suggested for luncheon. The rhubarb sauce should be served with the hominy, bacon and sandwiches and the cookies finish the meal to help make the milk "go down."

Asparagus Omelet

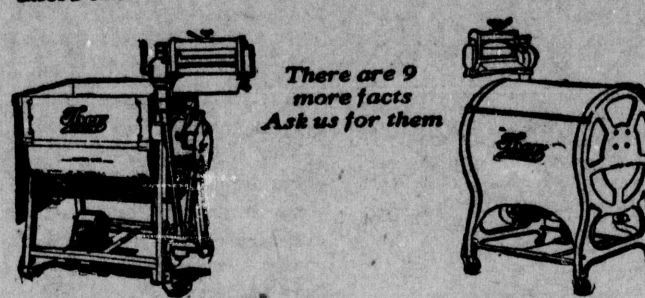

One bunch asparagus, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup water in which asparagus was cooked, 1-2 cup cream, 5 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper.

Wash and scrape asparagus and cut all but four fine stalks into inch pieces, discarding the tough ends. Cook all in boiling water until tender adding the heads after the first ten minutes of cooking. The police believe that a wholesale bootlegger had put the liquor at this hiding place for some retailer in Fullerton. A member of the police department was stationed near the spot Friday night, Saturday and Sunday night in an effort to spot the owner of the booze. PLANS LOOKING TO DEVELOPING OF HARBOR ARE BEING FORMED

Register Suggestion That Assessment District Be Created Being Discussed

BALBOA RESIDENT URGES ANNEXATION

"Solid South" of County in Recent Election Voted 5 1/2 to 1 For Enfranchisement

Shall the friends of the harbor build it?

Would formation of a harbor assessment district, to include that portion of the county which went so gallantly over the top for the harbor bonds last Thursday, be a practical procedure for carrying out the greater harbor program?

Does the vision of a commercial and industrial future at Newport Bay include, possibly, the annexation of a zone between Santa Ana and the sea? Shall the county seat thrust her frontiers across the few intervening miles and hurl her whole energy into this job of building a port?

These questions are getting serious consideration today. They have been brewing discussion since the Register editorial columns last Friday presented the suggestion of an assessment district.

The notion got instant attention, it appears from the amount in its wake. Matching it in interest is the declaration of one observer, W. A. Leonard, of Balboa, that Santa Ana, in order to avail herself of cheap water rates, would be forced to incorporate to the bay. Leonard believes that Santa Ana sees its future linked inevitably to Newport harbor and therefore bound to any program of harbor development.

The suggestion of an assessment district has been analyzed to some extent. Conceding that such a district should logically embrace the territory that has shown espousal of the harbor cause, it is found that, for one thing, this territory is geographically solid and well balanced, comprising an almost perfect radius from Newport harbor. Fronting the ocean from Seal Beach, a few miles to one side of the harbor, to Laguna Beach, a few miles the other side, it would be set in a rough half-circle with the

ANNUAL LAGUNA BEACH ART ASSOCIATION EXHIBITION IS DECLARED TO BE BEST EVER

By MARION MUNSON FORREST

Considered solely on its merits as an exhibition of paintings by artists of importance in the Southland, the new show of the Laguna Beach Art association is a particularly fine one. Considered as an exhibition over which the public will enthuse, this current show is a wonder. It is of interest to both artist and layman. Convincing in its sincerity is the very fine William A. Griffith canvas, "When Hills Are Green." Griffith is president of the Art association and is well known in the exhibitions of the Southland.

But there are other fine pictures in this show. One of them is the splendid "Santa Barbara" by Arthur Hill Gilbert.

With Norman Chamberlain's name on the list of exhibitors the Gallery is always assured of an unusual bit of artistic perfection. This time the Chamberlain offering is a view of the famous "Boat Canyon," the place where a movie company filmed "The Light House by the Sea." Most picturesque, the wreck of the moving picture fishing village, has been painted and repainted by artists. It is one place at which everybody has a try, "Boat Canyon."

Donna Schuster, who is generally an interesting painter, has sent in a delightful addition to the present exhibit. She has painted her garden steps and a bit of her garden. And she has called the picture "My Garden Steps." It is a picture frankly of the idealistic modern school.

Mrs. Schuster is also showing "Marigold," a nice bit of dashing pigment.

Back in Laguna

F. Carl Smith, who has been wintering in Pasadena, but who comes to Laguna Beach each summer to his studio on the ocean front, has had hung one of the finest things he has ever shown here. "Enchanted Hills" it is called. The painting is one of the outstanding pictures of the show.

Purchases Studio

William Riddell, who has purchased the Roy Clarkson Colman studio here, and who has been president of the Palette and Chisel Club of Chicago, is exhibiting for the first time since his arrival in Laguna Beach. He chose to send in a nice bit of desert, charming in its simplicity of design and color.

Irving Manoir, who is having a one man show at the Chicago Art Institute this summer is exhibiting a canvas showing the old ranch house which is now the home of the Woman's Club of Laguna Beach.

Frank W. Cuprien, going away from his beautiful idyllic sea effects, is showing the ocean in another mood. A storm is passing and a glorious bit of brilliant silvery light is deluging one part of the water.

Anna A. Hills, who is of the school of painters who look for beauty in all things and who expresses it so that the layman can understand

Avocado Theft Rewards Are Posted

Rewards are now being posted in Southern California for avocado thieves and the return of stolen avocados, as well as for automobiles, diamonds, dogs and missing persons.

The California Avocado Growers' exchange announced that several hundred dollars have been paid out to persons who have apprehended avocado thieves since the movement to safeguard the "orchard diamonds" was inaugurated some time ago.

Growers pointed out that their cash books received substantial jolts, even though a thief only filled his coat pockets with the fruit. Fancy avocados sell for between 75 cents and $1 each.

CHILDREN TOLD OF FLAG DAY IN STORY HOUR

Besides telling the stories of others during the weekly story hours at the library, Mrs. Helen Nelson, head of the junior department, tells stories of her own. Saturday the original story told by Mrs. Nelson was "Muscle Magic," a story of a little girl who through a dream is taught that there is music in everything. Woven into the story in a clever manner is brief account of a scene in Mozart's childhood.

Other original numbers on the program were a fairy dance and a song by Little Miss Carrie Kimball. The second story was "What the Flag Said," which was told in order to remind children of Flag day. Following the story a number of children who had answered a puzzle correctly were awarded flags by Mrs. Nelson. The puzzle was a large chart on which were a number of pictures representing books. On the picture was the name of the author who wrote the book. The ones who found the title to all of the books received a flag.

Mrs. Nelson announced a contest lasting from July 1 to September 1 when the one who reads the most books will receive a gift. Each contestant will be required to write a brief outline of the story and tell what part proved the most interesting.

Next Saturday Miss Octavia Goldsworthy will give a brief talk on "Pictures and Birds," and Mrs. Charles Best will read some original poetry telling why cats purr, dogs bark, and other interesting "whys."

It is requested that there will be a good attendance at the first story hour, for it may be the last one, according to Mrs. Nelson.

Woman Is Jailed On Liquor Charge

Mrs. Rosario DJimenez, 23, of Fullerton, was in the Orange county jail this morning, charged with possession of liquor. Mrs. DJimenez was arrested yesterday by Fullerton officers, who raided the Mexican settlement, known as Little La Juana, on the Bastanchury ranch. According to the report made by the officers, two large stills, eight gallons of alleged moonshine liquor, and a barrel of mash were discovered and confiscated by the raiding party.

For graduates—regular $16.00 quality photos, 1-2 dozen for $35.00. Others at $5.00 and $6.00 a dozen, at Gibson's Studios this week.

Bemoans Loss Of Cigarets As Car Turns Over

"Tough luck" pursued Mrs. Eddie Green, colored, of San Diego, according to a tale she told State Motorcycle Officer Loren "Pat" Hurd after her car had turned over on the State highway at Serra, below San Juan Capistrano.

According to Hurd, the woman's highly colored car rounded a curve at Serra at a high rate of speed and turned over several times. The woman crawled from the machine uninjured bemoaning the loss of a package of cigarettes. She told Hurd that she "sure had a lot of hard luck," and also informed him that she was returning to San Diego to her husband.

Hurd decided she had had some hard luck, but when he returned to Santa Ana he found that the woman had just been released from the Orange county jail, where she was serving a term for reckless driving. She was arrested some time ago in Fullerton.

BOYS' CAMP IN MOUNTAINS IS THROWN OPEN

Camp Osceola, the Orange county Y. M. C. A. boys' camp, was officially opened today, when an advance party of about 20 men and boys went to the San Bernardino mountains to prepare the camp for its first delegation of boy campers.

Men from Fullerton, Orange, Anaheim and other parts of the county, as well as from Santa Ana, armed with all sorts of tools and working equipment, departed for the camp this morning. The local delegates included Norvin brothers and Ralph Lewis, together with Secretary R. C. Smedley.

During the week, tent floors are to be rebuilt, the new camp range is to be set up, the kitchen put in working order, and the water supply completed.

A spring has been discovered on the mountain side near the camp, and water from the spring is to be piped to camp. A sample of the water was tested in the county laboratory last week, and was pronounced absolutely safe and good for use. This spring insures a constant supply of pure water for the entire camp.

The "Lions lodge," erected last summer through the aid of the Lions clubs of Orange county, will be in use this season, adding much to the comfort and convenience of the campers. The kitchen is to be established in the lodge, together with the dining room and the big recreation hall.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Kenline have gone to the camp, where they will organize more handle the commissary department. Mrs. Kenline proved her ability as a camp cook last season, and she will be warmly welcomed by the boys for this summer's camp. Knox Finley is to serve as camp manager, taking care of the business end of the camp affairs. The size of the commissary department is indicated by the fact that a truckload of approximately three tons of food supplies, purchased through a local firm, went up to the camp today. This shipment will last for about one month of camp.

Boys' Secretary T. P. McKee reports that his allotment of places for the camp is being filled satisfactorily, and that he expects to take in a capacity crowd for his camp, starting July 20. The first camp will be for Fullerton boys, starting June 22.

WALNUT MEN TO HAVE FIELD DAY

Annual field day program, sponsored by the walnut growers of Southern California, will be held in Santa Barbara county, at Tucker's Grove, near Goleta, on Saturday, June 26, it was announced today.

One of the feature numbers of the program will be a lecture by Prof. W. H. Chandler, of the state college of agriculture, who will speak on the subject, "Cause and Effect of Delayed Foliation in Deciduous Fruit and Nut Trees in Southern California."

The unusual behavior of nuts and other fruits, notably peaches, in Southern California this season, is causing considerable speculation by growers and substantial losses in certain sections. Professor Chandler's work in all parts of the United States has placed him foremost as an authority on rest period problems in trees, and his participation in the program bids fair to draw large attendances from all counties of Southern California.

The program will start at 10 a. m. and close at 3:30 p. m. The first portion of the day to be devoted to lectures, the last number to be a tour to neighboring walnut groves to study irrigation problems. Other speakers include R. G. La Rue, of the citrus experiment station, Carlyle Thorpe, manager California Walnut Growers' association, and W. B. Hooper, extension specialist in walnut culture, from the college of agriculture.

BANQUET HELD BY ALUMNI OF HIGH SCHOOL

Instead of painting the owl, the class of '01 painted the sidewalks, according to Harry Blee, manager of ceremonies at the alumni banquet of the Santa Ana high school, held Saturday night at Ebell clubhouse. And even when the class of '01 was striving for scholarly honors, various pupils performed deeds that brought the wrath of the school board on their heads, Blee said.

The worst thing attributed by Blee to the class, which was celebrating its 25th anniversary, was the attempt to tie a red dress to the flag pole, "in such a manner that the building would have to come down in order to get the dress off the pole." Finding it impossible to get the dress on the pole, the students who were implicated managed to attach it to a shingle, where it was to be seen the following morning.

Naturally, said Blee, the school board was indignant, "but what they charged us with made us indignant also. We were charged with spitting the shingles on the roof."

Other interesting incidents were told by Blee during the last courses of the dinner, which was served by the Ebell Book Review section.

After the dinner, the 135 alumni were present adjourned to the auditorium, where a short program, prepared by Arthur Collins, president of the association, was given and a business meeting was held.

Features of the program were dances by Faustina Lucero, Miss Philadelphia, who is soon to go to Philadelphia to represent California at the Sequel-Centennial exposition, and Chulina Lindsay, Miss Lucero, dressed in the costume of the early Spaniards, gave a solo dance. The dance in which both Miss Lucero and Miss Lindsay took part was typically Mexican.

Jennie Lind came upon the stage, a breath of the past, and a reminder of the days when the original Jennie Lind thrilled her audiences in New York in the 50's. Her singing was appropriate to the dress which she wore which belonged to the earlier Jennie Lind. One especially charming number was a song of Sweden, sung in the language of that country.

Monroe Sharpless, tenor, accompanied by Miss Effie Jessup, aided in making of the evening's entertainment. He sang "Holly Lush" and several solos and Robert Paine, tenor, sang a group of songs. Effie Jessup played a piano solo.

During the intermission, while the stage was being prepared for the one-act play which was to conclude the program, a business meeting was held. Officers for the coming year elected were Warren Hilliard, '05, president; Lucien Phillips, '03, vice president; May Northrup-Burlew, '04, secretary and treasurer and Blanch McDowell, '00, Frank Greenleaf, '07, John Newcomer, '10, Ada McFadden, '05A, Dixon Tubbs, '14, Mary Jane Owens, '26, and Arta Anderson, '02, executive board.

The play, "Oh Percy!" written by Carson Smith, '13, dealt with the making of a hero out of Sir Percival Fielding (Carson Smith), who was the husband of Eleanor Van Pelt (Gladys Simpson Shafer), recently returned from Europe. Others who had parts in the play were Mrs. H. H. Reeves, as Mrs. Van Pelt, whose jewels are stolen, and Marie, the maid, Mary Clafon.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to reminiscences.

An informal dance, music for which was provided by those present at the banquet, willing to offer their services, was enjoyed.

According to older members of the association, Saturday night's reunion was the most successful held in years.

CITY SCHOOL HEAD OBSERVES BIRTHDAY

With flowers banked in every nook and corner of the building, the board of education offices this morning looked more like a florist's place of business than an administration centers of school activities.

The occasion was the birthday of John A. Cranston, city superintendent of schools. In addition to flower offerings from the various schools, teachers' organizations, Parent-Teacher bodies, educational centers and civic organizations, the popular school man received a large number of congratulatory letters and telegrams.

"While I appreciate these many tokens of esteem and appreciation, the best birthday gift awaiting me this morning when I reached the office, was a letter containing a modified opinion by Attorney General Webb, to the effect that we can continue to maintain and operate junior high schools," Cranston chuckled, expressing his satisfaction with the same.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK OPENS IN SANTA ANA INSTITUTIONS WITH BACCALAUREATE EXERCISES

Rev. Harter Addresses Poly*Rev. Perry Schrock Speaks At Service in Congregational Church

With a higher resolve and a tighter grip, the graduating seniors of the 1926 class of Santa Ana Polytechnic high school today were ready to face the world, inspired to worthy motives, urged upon them by Santa Ana, pastor of the United Brethren church, at the baccalaureate service, held last night in the high school auditorium.

"There is a place awaiting the man who is making careful preparation for his life work," the Rev. Mr. Harter declared.

An object lesson for life was drawn from John the Baptist, "A man sent from God." The needs for strong convictions and self discovery were pointed out in the sermon.

The high school auditorium was filled for the service. At the opening note of the Victory march, played by the high school orchestra, the graduating class of 1926 students marched down the aisle to take seats in the reserved section.

Fitting decorations added to the occasion. Large bouquets, in the red and white colors of the high school, adorned the platform. Bright lights were played on a huge '26 placed in back of the speakers.

In opening the service, the Rev. G. N. Greer declared that democracy will continue "only while efforts are made to advance those things of the spirit as well as the intellect." The invocation was asked by the Rev. Moffatt Rhodes, of the Spurgeon Memorial church. The scripture was read by the Rev. E. J. Nickel.

Robert Bradford Sings "Oh Divine Redeemer" was sung by Robert Bradford.

Prayer was given by the Rev. Samuel Edgar.

Preceding the sermon, the high school mixed chorus, directed by Miss Louise Mansfield, sang. Then the Rev. Mr. Harter spoke. The audience joined in a hymn, following the sermon. Benediction was given by the Rev. Perry E. Schrock. While the audience remained seated, the graduating class marched out of the auditorium.

The baccalaureate sermon, delivered by the Rev. Mr. Harter, was, in full, as follows:

"Under blue Persian skies, on the banks of the broad muddy waters of the Jordan river, lived and taught the man who is the subject of this text. His clothing was of camel's hair and a leathern girdle about his loins. His meat was locusts and wild honey. His was the voice of one crying in the wilderness, 'Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make His paths straight.' Throngs of people from Jerusalem and surrounding cities went out to hear him. John the Baptist had a conviction in his soul that he was sent from God for a special mission in the world. The world about him shared that conviction and does to this day.

Introduces Jesus Christ

"In a day of skepticism and doubt, John the Baptist introduced Jesus Christ to the world as the Lamb of God, Who would take away its sin. Then he introduced his friends to Jesus, among whom was John the Baptist, who wrote five books of the Bible.

"These men believed that spiritual forces, expressed in the terms of human personality, and not physical conditions, are the final powers.

"The outline of my message is found in the text itself. Man is the center of interest and study. His power is measured by the depth and sacredness of his convictions. His usefulness in his self-discovery."

"There is a place awaiting the man who is making careful preparation for his life work. The home is calling for the hand and heart of a true woman to guide it."

"There's surely somewhere a lowly place

For Jesus the crucified.

"Men who have helped to make world history have had deep convictions of responsibility to God, and the sacredness of life. Jesus said, 'The life is more than meat and the body than raiment.' The great explorer, Livingstone, was led on to the heart of Africa by the smoke of a thousand villages, where the Word of God never had been heard, and the sense that he might make some contribution toward their getting it. Men ever have looked at world tasks and said in the language of Isaiah, 'Lord, here am I send me.'

Law of Self-Discovery

"Next we learn from this text the law of self-discovery 'whose name was John.' A very common name. John was born in the secluded hill country of Judea. Could he become the forerunner of the Prince of Peace? Yes, this humble son of a Levite could come to Jordan and baptize people by the thousands. The work of the teacher is to help the student in self-discovery. In this they are de-

A correct conception of values is essential for life, graduates of the Santa Ana junior college were told by the Rev. Perry Frederick Schrock at the baccalaureate service held yesterday morning in the First Congregational church. The subject of the Rev. Mr. Schrock's sermon was, "Life's Highest Standard."

As the service opened, the 23 graduates marched to the section reserved for them. The regular order of worship was followed. Special music was supplied by Mrs. Walter Spicer, violinist, and Miss Ola Blair, soloist.

Life's highest standard is the example of Christ, the Rev. Mr. Schrock said.

"The sort of life you young people lead—that already is the chief concern of us older people for you today. You yourselves are rightly concerned with the choice of a life work. But of greater interest to us is how you are going to follow the vocation of living."

Five Points of Life

Five points in the standard of life were named, as the pastor spoke directly to the college students. The points listed were: a sense of values, a desire for truth, a feeling of brotherhood, an attitude for service and a oneness with God.

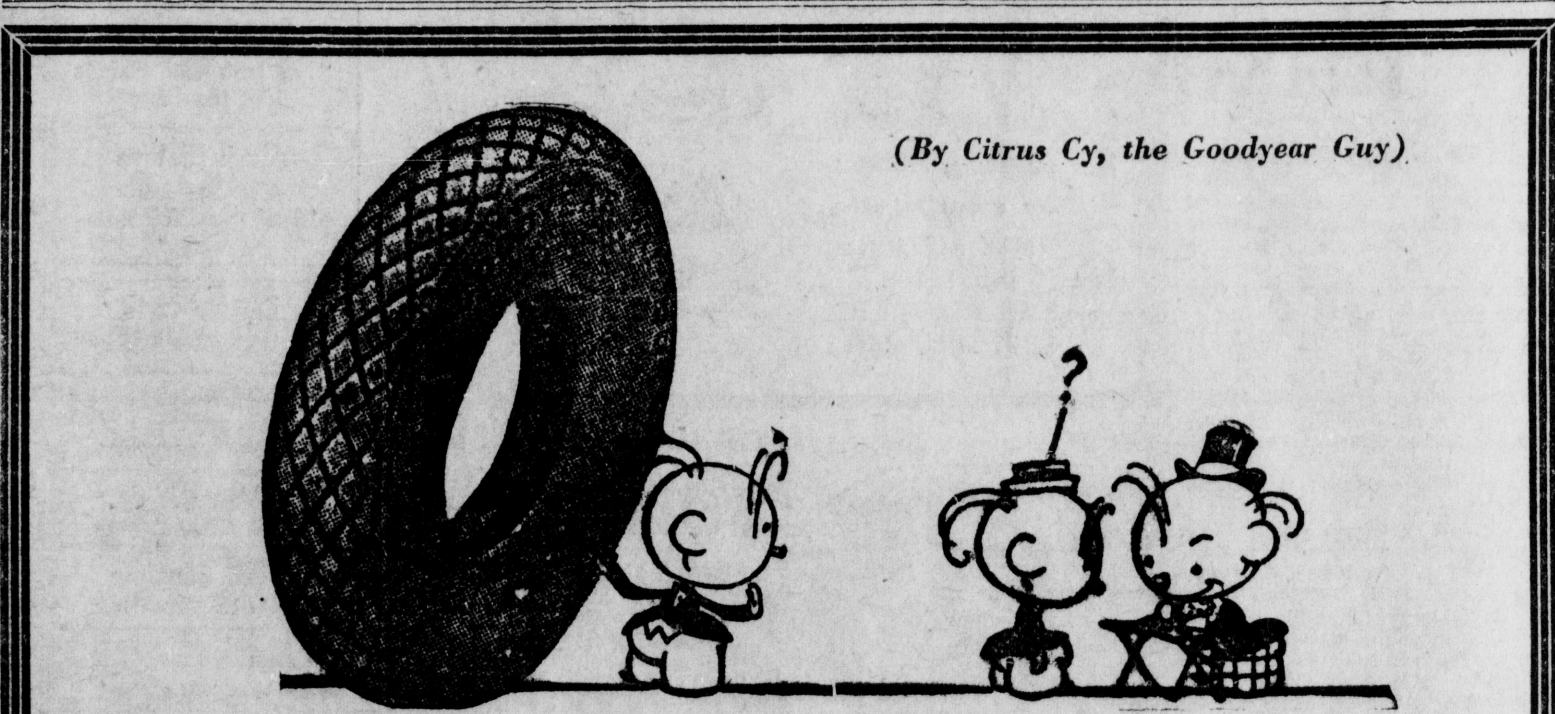

The baccalaureate sermon in full, was as follows:

"One of the major activities of the present time is to weigh and measure. We call it standardization. We weigh and we measure everything under the sun and even the sun itself. The other day our newspapers came out with the headline announcement that some man had been able to weigh the dot of an 'i.' Professor Millikan has achieved international fame by being able to weigh an electron. We can gain some idea of that achievement when we remember that the diameter of an electron is one-tenth of a trillionth of an inch. But in the other extreme, our scientists are able to weigh the earth. They tell us that the earth weighs about sextillion tons. They measure how far it is to the distant stars. The last issue of the 'Outlook' tells us that 10 million years ago a star exploded, and the light of that explosion has just reached the earth. So great are the distances that they measure, that the standard of measurement is a light year.

"Not only are our scientists measuring and weighing but we ourselves live by weights and measures. We wear our babies according to the standard of the 'Better Baby movement.' We eat our food according to the standard of the dieticians—so many calories of this and so many calories of that. We drive our autos at so many miles per hour and so many miles per day. The engines in our autos are rated at so many horsepower and they consume a certain number of gallons of gas and oil to a certain number of miles. Our courses of study, from kindergarten to university, are standardized. Even our play is standardized. Our boys play according to the rules and measures of the Boy Scouts or Pioneer clubs, and our girls, according to the standards of the

Barnum was right—But Conservative

"There's a sucker born every minute," said Barnum. Had he lived in these piping times, he probably would have added—"and that's a very, very conservative estimate."

There is no need of being fooled, though, particularly in the buying of tires. We keep tooting here, week in and week out, on the fallacy of trying to get something for nothing. Can't he do—no indeed!

With an increasing number of sensible people, the old days of catch-as-catch-can buying are about gone.

Capital Letter

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Every family that ever wondered how it was going to pay the rent or shivered at the word mortgage will be interested in the proposal of Congressman Robert Crosser, of Cleveland, O.

He would have the government do for the struggling householder what it already has done successfully for the farmer. His national home loan bill would help people buy homes just as the farm loan act helps them buy farms. And he would put out of their jobs a lot of business boosters for whom he has no more respectful name than Shylocks.

"I began thinking about this question as a result of some law cases I have handled," Crosser tells you. "People have come to me for help after having made several years' payments on their homes. 'For some reason they have to sell and they can't even get back their original payment. Well, they have been charged interest at the full legal rate, whatever that is. Sometimes it is 8 per cent, sometimes 11 per cent. Then they have been charged a bonus or commission, which goes up to 30 or 40 per cent additional. It is plain usury, but it is being done.'"

"Now if the government helps the farmers, as it should, why not the average family also? There are about six and a half million families in the United States, but there are more than 24 million families that have to have homes."

The size of the group to whom appeal and promise is made by this bill is indicated by statistics of the census bureau. Of all the families in the United States, about 54 per cent live in rented houses, and of the others, 38 per cent have mortgages on their homes.

Those whose homes are mortgaged would be eager, Crosser figures, to exchange their present obligations for the more reasonable rates of loans by the proposed national home loan bank.

One effect would be to force down the mortgage rates of private financial institutions. And presumably a vast army of folks who are struggling under the yoke of the rent collector would jump at the chance to own their own homes under conditions that placed them within reach.

The maximum interest charge from one of the proposed home loan banks would be 6 per cent. The total amount borrowed could be anywhere from $200 to $8000, and Crosser is inclined to increase that total somewhat. The limit of borrowing would be 60 per cent of the total value of the home to be bought.

To operate this project there would be a national home loan commission consisting of the secretary of the treasury and two other members. They would set up home loan banks in each state, with the government putting up what capital stock was not subscribed privately. Borrowers would organize themselves into home loan associations, through which the loans would be negotiated.

"The plan is as nearly the same as that of the farm loan banks as it could be made," says Representative Crosser. "It worked for the farms, and I

Bacon from Cow, Sophomore Says

SACRAMENTO, June 13.—Startling discoveries were made by English teachers of the Sacramento high school when they corrected papers of an achievement test given sophomore students.

For instance, one student said that "air brakes are used on balloons," while another insisted that "alcohol is made from gasoline." Still another student said that "orange is a kind of marmalade," while a city-reared pupil declared that "bacon comes from a cow."

The teachers concluded that months of studying of classic mythology had been so much lost time for the student who said that "Styx was the name of a god."

am convinced it will work for homes. There is no validity in an objection that the government has its hands in enough enterprises now. If the government does not set up this means of help, which is needed, the people will go without the relief.

"England has attempted to solve the problem by a housing law under which the government built homes and rented them to the people. That would not be acceptable here. This proposal is a far more favorable attention that I think I am going to get a committee hearing on it, and you can be sure that some day it will go through."

YOST BROADWAY THEATER

Stunning in its realism, with a tremendous appeal to human sympathies, "The Greater Glory," which had a premier at the Yost Broadway theater last night, is a picture in a thousand. Nothing approaching it in emotional sweep has been seen on the screen in many seasons.

Anna Q. Nilsson, Conway Tearle, Lucy Beaumont, May Allison, Ian Keith and Jean Hersholt, the principal players, are to be credited with giving superb performances. And no less poignant and pertinent performances are contributed by Nigel de Brulier, John Sainpaulis, Marcia Manon, Edward Earle, Virginia Southern, Hale Hamilton, Cora Macey and Isabel Keith. Many others, too many to be mentioned here, complete the long cast of this First National picture.

"The Greater Glory" has the tribute of tears in addition to the laughter of the audience. John Sainpaulis, who supervised the production, adds another opus of glory to her record, fully deserving to rank with her "Four Horsemen" and "Blood and Sand."

LABOR STRIFE IN FRESNO IMMINENT

FRESNO, June 14.—With failure of labor unions and the Fresno industrial association to renew contracts which expire on June 16, industrial warfare looms in Fresno, after six years of peace, hardly marred by a ripple.

Most of the unions have asked for increased wages and some for shorter hours. The Industrial association has responded that a decrease rather than an increase in pay is in order and so far conferences have ended in heated rows. Industrial association leaders declared that, if the contract is not renewed, they would move to establish in Fresno the American plan, in operation in San Francisco, Los Angeles and other California cities.

During the last six years, a plan of arbitration between employers and labor unions, widely known as the Fresno plan, has been in operation here. Chester Rowell, then newspaper publisher in Fresno, was largely responsible for the adoption of the plan, which has kept Fresno from labor strife ever since.

Chief End of Education

"But when we come to this business of living, that which Professor Coe called 'the business of being human, the mutual attainment of satisfactory selves in a satisfactory society' by what standard shall we measure this? For after all, living is the chief end of education. Dr. Coe, in his little book, 'What Ails Our Youth?' has one chapter entitled, 'What Ails Education?' His answer is that our colleges do not make 'education for the vocation of living' their supreme purpose and test. The implication is that the vocation of living is the end and purpose of education. Whether or not the colleges fall in this is a debatable point. But suppose they do educate for the vocation of living. By what standard and are we to measure the successful following of this vocation of living? How are we to know that these young people, who have completed courses of study, whose purpose is to train them in the vocation of living, are successfully following that vocation?"

"In the text which we have seen, Paul is furnishing a standard for the vocation of living—a standard by which we may measure the degree of success we have attained in following the vocation of living. And this is the standard. 'Only, do lead a life that is worthy of the gospel of Christ.' Just before he said this, he set his own life standard. For himself he said, 'For me to live is Christ.' He seemed to have the feeling that his living was to be, in very truth, the living of Christ himself on earth. And for his friends, to whom he was writing, he set up this standard—'Do lead a life that is worthy of the gospel of Christ.'

Measure of Life

"The sort of life you young people lead—that is really the chief concern of us older people for you today. You, yourselves, are rightly concerned with the choice of a life. You are troubled as to whether you are to be doctors, lawyers, business men, or teachers, or ministers, or something else. We, too, are interested in that, but of greater interest to us is how you are going to follow the vocation of living. And so I would like to offer to you today this standard that Paul set up, 'A life worthy of the gospel of Christ.' If you young people will accept that standard as your own, we older folks will be entirely free from anxiety. So let us think together about this standard—this measure of life. What would it mean for a man to lead a life 'worthy of the gospel of Christ'?"

"First, a life worthy of the gospel of Christ would have a proper sense of values. Some years ago, Ellis Parker Butler published an essay, in one of our popular magazines, entitled, 'Chasing Goat Feathers.' By goat feathers he meant the trivial things of life, sometimes the things of second or third importance, and by chasing these goat feathers, neglecting the really worthwhile things. He himself confessed that by chasing goat feathers he had prevented himself from becoming a really worthwhile man."

Chasing Goat Feathers seems to be a popular avocation. All of us confess to ourselves that we spend altogether too much time in this useless pastime. Why do people chase goat feathers? Is it not because they lack a sense of values? Most people are not maliciously wicked. They don't do foolish or wicked things because they are bad at heart. Ordinarily they choose a thing that they think they want and seem most worthwhile.

"Jesus had a sense of values that other people did not have. That is one reason for his pre-eminence. And he tried to teach this sense of values to his followers. He used every opportunity to cultivate a sense of values. For instance, that is the point in the familiar story of Mary and Martha. One of our modern versions brings that out clearly. It quotes Jesus as saying, 'Mary hath chosen the best dish and is not to be dragged away from it,' contrasting his teachings with

How to make
Raspberry Jam
keep the color and flavor of the fresh berries

Here is an easy new way to make perfect raspberry jam without cooking away the luscious fresh flavor of your berries and their beautiful bright color.

With Certo you do not have to "boil your fruit down." One or two minutes' boiling is enough to give perfect, tender jelly. You cannot have a failure and you get half again more jam from your fruit because you save the juice instead of cooking it away.

Crush thoroughly about 2 quarts ripe berries. Measure 4 level cups (2 lbs.) crushed berries into a large kettle. Add ½ level cups (2½ lbs.) sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire and stir constantly before and while boiling. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard for 1 minute, remove from fire and stir in ¼ cup Certo. Stir and stir repeatedly for just 5 minutes after taking from fire, to cool slightly. Then pour quickly and cover hot jam at once with hot melted paraffin.

A book of nearly 100 recipes for all sorts of delicious jams and jellies comes with each bottle of Certo. Your grocer carries Certo, or you can send 10c (for postage) and get a trial half-size bottle which will make from 6 to 10 glasses of jam or jelly, depending upon the recipe used. the dishes of food that Martha was preparing for the table. Again there is the story of the rich fool, the man whose farm brought forth plentifully and who built large barns and stored them full and then said to himself, 'Soul take thine ease, eat, drink and be merry.' And that night God said to him, 'Thou foolish one. This night thy life is required of thee. And these things, whose shall they be?'

"Again a sense of values is the point in the Parables and the Publican, who went up to the temple to pray. The Pharisee related before God the things he had done. The Publican prayed, 'God be merciful to me, a sinner.' He expresses it all in that familiar saying from the sermon on the mount, 'Seek first the Kingdom of God and its righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you.'

"School and college have tried to give you a sense of values. Your teachers have tried to show what has value and what is trivial. If they have cultivated that sense of values in you, then their work has been successful. But their work is useless unless you have the courage to choose the things of most value. As Mary, choose the best dish and refuse to be dragged from it. 'A life worthy of the gospel of Christ' is the one that knows what is of most value and has the courage to choose it.

Attitude Toward Truth

"Second, a life worthy of the gospel of Christ will be evidenced by its attitude toward truth. It will have Jesus' attitude toward truth. Jesus believed in truth. He trusted truth implicitly. 'Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.' He never was afraid of truth—not even when it upset what once was held to be truth. The truth always makes for freedom, and he thought his followers to be open-minded toward truth—that there is always more of truth to be learned. He said to them, 'The spirit of truth will guide you into all the truth.' And then he was loyal to the truth and felt that the object of his life was to bear witness to the truth. To me the most thrilling moment in history is when Jesus stood before Pilate and said, 'To this end I am come into the world, to bear witness to the truth.' Jesus, believing in truth, was open-minded toward truth, and was loyal to truth, loyal to the uttermost. And a life that is worthy of the gospel of Christ will have that same attitude toward truth. It will reverence truth—all truth. It will be open-minded toward truth, knowing that no human mind ever has apprehended the whole of truth. And it will be loyal to truth no matter what the price may be that that loyalty costs.

Brotherliness Strengthened

"Third, a life worthy of the gospel of Christ will be characterized by brotherliness. In the city of London there is a monument erected to the memory of Ethel Cavell, the English nurse, who was shot as a spy during the war. And on that monument are inscribed the last words of this brave woman, 'I realize that patriotism is not enough. I must have no hatred or bitterness toward anyone.' Like-wise we may say that a sense of values and a reverence for truth are not enough. I must not hate or despise any fellow human being. I must live a life of brotherliness with all men. When we come to study the life of Jesus, we find that right here he placed his chief emphasis. It is on a right relationship with one's fellow men. Is not that the meaning of the Golden Rule, 'Do unto others as you would have others do unto you?' Love thy neighbor as thyself? But he went further than that, 'Thou hast read thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thy enemy, but I say unto you, love your enemies.' We get the same emphasis in his insistence upon forgiveness. He tells men to pray 'Forgive our debts as we forgive our debtors.' He tells Peter to forgive until 70 times seven. Forgiveness—what is it? Is it not the re-establishing of a broken relationship? All this means that a life worthy of the gospel of Christ is a life lived in a brotherly relationship toward mankind.

"Let me live in a house by the side of the road, Where the race of men go by— The men who are good and the men who are bad, As good and as bad as I. I would not sit in the scorners' seat, Or hurl the cynic's ban— Let me live in a house by the side of the road, And be a friend to man."

"Or it may be as Walter Gresham writes: 'So I say, let me walk with the men in the road, Let me seek out the burdens that crush, Let me speak a kind word of good cheer to the weak, Who are falling behind in the rush. There are wounds to be healed, there are breaks we must mend, There's a cup of cold water to give; And the man in the road by the side of his friend Is the man who has learned to live.'"

"The point is this: Not so much the method by which that friendliness is expressed, but the possession of the friendly, brotherly heart, the freedom from a spirit of hatred or prejudice for any man or any race. Such a life is worthy of the gospel of Christ."

Instrument of Service

"Fourth, a life worthy of the gospel of Christ will have his life purpose as expressed in his own words, 'Not to be ministered unto, but to minister.' It matters not what may be one's individual vocation. The particular work which you or I do ought to be our instrument for service. Of course, the better fitted we are for that work, the more efficient we become in performing it, the better will be the service we render through it. And in the rendering of that service, we ought to expect to get the richest returns for ourselves. It is literally true that 'He that sows his life shall find it.' Henry Ford says that the business man who runs his business upon the idea of service will get rich in spite of himself. I imagine, however, that the riches may not always be reckoned in cash. They may be the riches invisible, but richer eternal. Only, do lead the life of service that is worthy of the gospel of Christ. "Fifth, Jesus was an idealist. He saw not only what is, but what might be and ought to be. He looked into men's faces and saw, not merely the life before him, but the life that was possible.

"In every human face I see A perfect humanity; All men, though brothers of the clod, Bear promise of the sons of God." "That promise Jesus was able to read in the faces of his fellow-men. He looked out into the world and saw beyond its meagerness and bitterness and sordidness the world that might be and ought to be. I know no better expression of that thing in Jesus—his idealistic, optimistic attitude toward the world—than a little poem entitled 'The Soul of Jesus is Restless.' (Matthew 9:26)

"The soul of Jesus is restless today; Christ is tramping through the spirit-world, Compassion in His heart for the fainting millions; He trudges through China, through Poland, through Russia, Austria, Germany, Armenia; Patiently He pleads with the church, Tenderly He woos her. The wounds of His body are bleeding afresh for the sorrows of His shepherdless people. We beseege Him with selfish petitions, We weary Him with our petty ambitions, From the needy we bury Him in piles of carved stone, We obscure Him in the smoke of stuffy incense, We drown His voice with the snarl and shrieks of our disgruntled bickerings, We build temples to Him with hands that are bloody, We deny Him in the needs and sorrows of the exploited, 'Least of His brethren.' The soul of Jesus is restless today, But eternally undimmed."

CYPRUS R. MITCHELL

"Restless But Undimmed" "Restless but eternally undimmed—that is the attitude of Jesus toward the world and it ought to be the attitude of the man today. We ought to be able to pray with the poet, 'God keep me still unsatisfied; unsatisfied because I believe in the possibility of attaining that better life. And so the life that is worthy of the gospel of Christ will be a life that has the power of vision. Such a life cannot be provincial or parochial in its outlook. It will be unsatisfied but never dissatisfied or pessimistic.

"A college friend of mine wrote a poem. He looked up to the blue hills of New England and they made their appeal to him and he concluded his poem with this verse: 'Behind the proxy interplay Of tasks which make our common day The inner vision glimpses, too, Its far off, beckoning heights of blue. Highland of hope, where dreams shall be Transformed into reality: Resolves and aspirations high, Which languish, droop, and all but die Amidst the sordid commonplace, Shall find clear light and open space. And though the road be not in sight Which leads to any far off height, I know, full well, the hills are there, Sun crowned, serene, forever fair. And from that knowledge comes to me A sense of high serenity. Life's humdrum is shot through and through With glories from the hills of blue.'"

"Finally, a life that is worthy of the gospel of Christ will have his sense of oneness with God. This ideal of life that we have talked about—a life that has Jesus' sense of values—that has his attitude toward truth—his brotherliness, his spirit of service, his idealism, is it an impossible ideal of life? It would be, except for one thing, the dynamic, the power, of Jesus' life. Jesus felt that he lived, and worked in partnership with God. 'My Father and I was a favorite expression of his. In a very real sense he believed that His life work was in accordance with the eternal purpose of God; that His strength and God's strength were combined for the attainment of His life purpose. God was helping Him to follow successfully the vocation of living.

Not Impractical Mysticism

"A modern writer, Dr. L. P. Jacks, editor of the 'Hibbert Journal,' believes that this sense of partnership with God is not merely an impractical mysticism. To him it is the very foundation of life. 'I will base my life on the assumption that somewhere, in the height above, or the depth below, power is waiting to back me up.' Again, 'God, if there be such an one, will reveal Himself as companion spirit in my endeavor to achieve a better-than-what-is. Now Jesus found that power that backed Him up. He found that companion spirit in His task of achieving a better-than-what-is. A life to be lived worthy of the gospel of Christ must find that same power. It will base its life on the assumption that power is waiting to back him up. That makes life a glorious adventure. It puts before one this challenging ideal, and it encourages one to undertake the experiment on the strength of its faith in the companion spirit and the power that backs one up.

"This is the standard for the vocation of living—a life that has Jesus' sense of values and Jesus' attitude toward truth—his brotherliness, his spirit of service, and Jesus' spirit of service, and Jesus' idealism, and Jesus' sense of companionship with God—the spirit of adventure with God. That life is worthy of the gospel of Christ. Only, do lead this life that is worthy of the gospel of Christ."

LAGUNA BEACH ART EXHIBITION IS BEST EVER

It is showing a finely composed canvas which she calls, "Cloud Castles." Lovely clouds, just turning a shell pink, are dancing over the sky and the earth seems waiting for their smile.

Ruth Peabody, the painter who corralled the popular honors of the last show, has hung two still lifes. One shows a bowl of gold fish. With the bowl are some water lilies, a gorgeous orange scarf and a blue vase filled with red dahlias. The other canvas is an arrangement of many hued flowers.

Clarence Hinkle sent in a large picture—an impression of "Buck" Weaver, himself a painter of distinction. Hinkle is also showing two small canvases.

Benjamin F. Horning, once a leading man with Salvini, Booth, Mansfield and the originator of the role of Father Serra in the Mission Play, is living in Laguna Beach and has taken up his work as a painter again. He is exhibiting a picture called "The Patriarch Poacher."

Martel Stover, who paints things that look like stained glass and which would brighten a dark corner, so vivid are they, and so jewel like, is showing two of his tiny pictures.

"The Village Street" Virginia Woolley, who has been painting in Laguna Beach for the last year, since her return from Alabama, has a very nice composition which she calls "The Village Street."

Julie E. Raymond, who has been having an exhibition on her own account of her sketches recently made in Mexico, sent in a bright bit called "Inglesia de Carmen."

Elste Payne, who is now living in Los Angeles and whose husband, Edgar A. Payne, is holding a one man show at the Ambassador has sent some nice things which were done in France last year.

Catherine Strode, sent in an unnamed picture which arrived at the gallery when a chaplain of the navy happened to be a visitor. The chaplain suggested a name which was accepted and the picture is called, "Trees Planted by the Waters."

It is a very nice arrangement of trees and possesses fine color values.

J. Vinnerstrom Cannon, who is painting in La Jolla, has had hung a scene showing Carmel-by-the-Sea in an alluring mood.

Hannah Jenkins, who loved to linger near the old adobe houses of New Mexico, is happy in her choice for this exhibition. She has sent a view of the old palace in Santa Fe.

Lillian Frost Ferguson is exhibiting a painting showing some of the old war time vessels in an arm of the San Pedro harbor.

Lorna Bomford has two pictures of scenes in Holland. Miss Bomford has left Laguna Beach for her English home.

Grace Vollmer is doing something out of the ordinary and is showing two charming specimens of her work. She used checker board squares in varying shades to get shadow effects.

Irene Robinson sent in "Point of the Wolves."

Ida Randall Bolles entered one of her marines that is especially Bollesque.

Bit of Wildwood

Alice V. Fullerton, poetic as usual, has chosen to exhibit a bit of wildwood, a dashing little brooklet dancing in the shadows.

Henry De Kruff, an artist who exhibits much in Los Angeles but seldom here, has sent a nice canvas "Emerald Morning." The title tells the story. De Kruff's other offering is "Glorious Day."

Charles Fries has three pictures in this show. The tug boat waiting for a chance customer is most likely to appeal to the gallery visitors.

Fries' other pictures are "The Scattered Peaks" and "From Valtellier Point."

Karl Jens, has four interesting pictures in this exhibition. One is especially worthy of comment. It shows a long line of the breakers rolling in great surges. Another of the Jens' pictures is a monotype.

Millard Sheets sent in "End of Day" and "Pomona." Lucy B. Jack Day, who strives for the unusual in showing a view of Boat Canyon; William Paxton is showing another one of his Parim Canyon canvases. Paxton is also showing "Saw Tooth Mountain."

George K. Brandriff's "Marine," superb in composition and amazing in draughtsmanship, is one of the finest marines the gallery has shown in some time.

The Laguna Beach Art Gallery is open from one o'clock in the afternoon until 5 and visitors are made welcome by the curator, Mrs. J. W. Bishop. Well equipped to speak with authority, the curator, is always ready with information when it is needed.

PLEASE LOOK AT DEVELOPING OF COUNTY HARBOR

A line drawn along the northern boundaries of Seal Beach, Wintersburg and Bolsa precincts, around the northern limits of Santa Ana and then eastward and southward to include Tustin, Irvine and El Toro precincts, finally enclosing Laguna precinct and ending at the sea there, would bound the seemingly logical territory for an assessment district, judging from the vote cast on the harbor bonds.

This line would separate the "solid south" from the precincts that defeated the harbor issue. Outside the circle were a few localities that returned a favorable vote, but they are separated from the harbor district by unfriendly precincts and could not be included.

Within this circle, however, the vote of last Thursday shows almost perfect concert on the harbor question. Several of the precincts included did not vote any decisive majority for the bonds. Neither did they show any marked dislike, their vote being in the nature of a "wait-and-see" attitude on the proposition to improve the harbor entrance.

Taken as a whole, the territory represents a sentiment of about 51-2 to 1 in favor of the harbor entrance bonds. Added to that sentiment is its geographical soundness. Such a district, furthermore, would contain more than half the population of the county, and it would represent a considerable portion of the assessed valuation.

In addition to Santa Ana, Tustin, Newport Beach, Costa Mesa, Laguna Beach, Huntington Beach and Seal Beach, the district would include the precincts of Bolsa Wintersburg, Talbert, Greenville, Delhi, Irvine and El Toro.

A total of 11,051 votes were cast in these precincts upon proposition No. 1, to improve the harbor entrance. Of these votes, 6,828 were yes and 4,223 were no. The various precincts voted as follows:

Precinct	Yes	No
Santa Ana	11,051	11,051
Newport Beach	955	5
Huntington Beach	919	8
Costa Mesa	874	8
Laguna Beach	378	80
Tustin	282	191
Delhi	209	10
Seal Beach	96	41
Greenville	87	21
Bolsa	71	78
Wintersburg	66	76
Talbert	60	24
Irvine	40	20
El Toro	13	14

Leonard's comment upon Santa Ana's future cannot be overlooked in any discussion of a course to be pursued. He says that the future of Santa Ana is as closely linked with Newport harbor as is that of Los Angeles with Wilmington and San Pedro.

"The industrial expansion of Los Angeles during the past decade is due to harbor development more than to that of all other local conditions," he states. He points out that Santa Ana is neighboring to the north by cities of almost equal importance, each of which retains its own trading area. Inasmuch as the ranching industry has about reached its limits, Santa Ana's future therefore depends upon manufacturing and commerce, which depend in turn upon development of a harbor.

Otherwise, he says, Santa Ana never hope to compete industrially with Long Beach, Los Angeles, Wilmington or San Pedro.

Incidentally, Leonard hints that if the county would return to the city of Newport Beach the tidelands that were originally given by the city to the county, on the understanding that the county would develop a harbor, the city of Newport Beach would be more than willing to take up the task of financing a harbor.

Looking at the situation from all of the various angles being discussed, one thing at least is apparent—somebody is going to build Newport harbor.

evening banquet at Elks club. At the morning session on Saturday, many interesting reports were read from the district officers and chairmen. The credentials chairman reported an attendance of 109 delegates out of a total of 206, representing 2846 members from Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego, Santa Barbara, Ventura and Imperial counties, which are included in the southern district.

After assembly singing of "America the Beautiful," other lively songs from a souvenir book presented by the district club, and the reading of the collect, Miss Julia Gudrum of the hostess club extended welcome greetings and was responded to by Miss Lloy Galpin, past president of the district, who stated that women have an ever-widening scope of usefulness and should co-operate in every community to make its people happy.

The retiring district president, Miss Brobst, reported a very busy year filled with worthwhile contacts with all counties of the district. One of the interesting reports was that of Miss Mary E. Grip-pen, vocational chairman, who gave figures on a recent questionnaire sent out to the clubs, and which showed an enormous unrest among women with dissatisfaction in their work. Many declared that they had drifted into their present jobs and very few reported any preparation for their professions. The greatest percentage of satisfaction in their chosen work was reported by teachers.

County presidents reported much excellent work being done by individual clubs, much of which is along civic and charitable lines. Miss Zulu Clements, state president, who has been very ill, sent greetings and regrets that she was not able to fill her place on the program and a letter of condolence was voted to be sent to her.

Elaborate arrangements for the state convention, which will be held in Hollywood September 2, 3 and 4, were reported by the various chairmen in charge. Velada club of Hollywood being the hostess club and Burbank inviting delegates and members to their "nite" on September 2.

Miss Vanche Etelle Plumb and Mrs. Olive Lopez attended the convention Saturday as delegates from the Santa Ana club, other women delegates, Miss Louise Kaiser, president, and Miss Elaine Wharton, secretary, arriving for the afternoon and evening.

Incidentally, Leonard hints that if the county would return to the city of Newport Beach the tidelands that were originally given by the city to the county, on the understanding that the county would develop a harbor, the city of Newport Beach would be more than willing to take up the task of financing a harbor.

The credentials chairman reported an attendance of 109 delegates out of a total of 206, representing 2846 members from Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego, Santa Barbara, Ventura and Imperial counties, which are included in the southern district.

After assembly singing of "America the Beautiful," other lively songs from a souvenir book presented by the district club, and the reading of the collect, Miss Julia Gudrum of the hostess club extended welcome greetings and was responded to by Miss Lloy Galpin, past president of the district, who stated that women have an ever-widening scope of usefulness and should co-operate in every community to make its people happy.

The retiring district president, Miss Brobst, reported a very busy year filled with worthwhile contacts with all counties of the district. One of the interesting reports was that of Miss Mary E. Grip-pen, vocational chairman, who gave figures on a recent questionnaire sent out to the clubs, and which showed an enormous unrest among women with dissatisfaction in their work. Many declared that they had drifted into their present jobs and very few reported any preparation for their professions. The greatest percentage of satisfaction in their chosen work was reported by teachers.

County presidents reported much excellent work being done by individual clubs, much of which is along civic and charitable lines. Miss Zulu Clements, state president, who has been very ill, sent greetings and regrets that she was not able to fill her place on the program and a letter of condolence was voted to be sent to her.

Elaborate arrangements for the state convention, which will be held in Hollywood September 2, 3 and 4, were reported by the various chairmen in charge. Velada club of Hollywood being the hostess club and Burbank inviting delegates and members to their "nite" on September 2.

Miss Vanche Etelle Plumb and Mrs. Olive Lopez attended the convention Saturday as delegates from the Santa Ana club, other women delegates, Miss Louise Kaiser, president, and Miss Elaine Wharton, secretary, arriving for the afternoon and evening.

ACID BLAST AT GARY KILLS 8 AND Maims 50

GARY, Ind., June 14.—Asides stored in the second floor of the modern brick coal house of the Gary Steel works exploded today, showering death on eight workers and injuring between 50 and 80 others.

The coke plant was wrecked—its walls caving in on a number of the 150 workers and windows within three blocks' radius were shattered. Many of the 80 injured are in dangerous condition and are not expected to live.

FUTURE OF SANTA ANA LINKED WITH THE SEA

Balboa, June 11, 1926.

Editor Register: The splendid vote cast in Santa Ana for harbor bonds proves conclusively that Santa Ana realizes that her future is closely linked with the sea at Newport Bay.

Santa Ana is surrounded with cities of almost equal importance as herself, each of which retains its full share of local trade, and as the ranching industry has just about reached its limit of expansion, its future, therefore, depends upon manufacturing and commerce. Without water transportation, Santa Ana cannot hope to expand materially in manufacture, for the reason that it cannot compete with similar cities and towns having more favorable freight rates. It is, therefore, apparent that unless the harbor at Newport is opened to commerce, Santa Ana can never become a competitor in manufacturing with Los Angeles, Long Beach, Wilmington or San Diego. In these cities, however, land suitable for manufacturing locations are quoted anywhere from $25,000 to $75,000 per acre, which materially increases the capital investment of a concern engaged in manufacturing. By the purchase of cheap lands at Newport Bay, and by free wharfage, plants in Orange county would be most favorably situated to compete with similar institutions anywhere along the coast.

Santa Ana, as a city, in order to avail herself of water rates, must extend her corporate limits to include at least a portion of the navigable waters of Newport Bay. This would then place Santa Ana on a parity with any part of Los Angeles, which enjoys water rates even at a distance of 30 miles from the harbor.

The future of Santa Ana is as closely linked with that of Newport Beach as is that of Los Angeles with Wilmington and San Pedro. The industrial expansion of Los Angeles during the past decade is due to harbor development more than to that of all other local conditions. It was the harbor which made Los Angeles industrially. Even the oil industry, which brought hundreds of millions of dollars to Los Angeles, was greatly stimulated by harbor development. Without the harbor this oil would not be shipped from Los Angeles, and the probabilities are that but little of it would even be refined in Southern California.

The cost of opening Newport harbor to commerce is so small that it would seem that it could be financed by a syndicate of local people, provided Orange county could be induced to pledge its tidelands for the completion of such an enterprise. With the development of the harbor, these tidelands would soon be worth ten times more than the cost of opening the harbor.

The city of Newport Beach now realizes that it made a serious mistake when it conveyed its tidelands of Newport Bay to Orange county. At that time, of course, it was expected that Orange county would finance the opening of the harbor, which, as a whole, she now refuses to do.

If these lands could be reconveyed to Newport Beach there could be no question that the city would be able to finance harbor development. These tidelands are the key to the unlocking of Newport harbor and the opening of a seaport, which, within a few years, would bring more new business to Orange county than the agricultural products amount to at the present time.

The people of Orange county, as a whole, have shown by their vote that they do not want a harbor. Many of them have stated that they want water for irrigation but not for commerce. Under such conditions, it would seem only fair and honorable for Orange county to return the tidelands, which she received as a gift, to Newport Beach, or donate them to some syndicate or corporation in consideration of harbor development.

ALLEGED LIQUOR DEALER IS SLAIN

SALEM, Ore., June 14—John Kaboris, alleged bootlegger, is dead. James Angelus is severely wounded. William Brown is in the county jail here and Chris Angelus is a fugitive with sheriff and state prohibition agents on his trail as the result of a raid on the Brown ranch.

C. C. McBride, state prohibition agent, shot Kaboris as he was advancing on the officer with a rifle while McBride was arresting Brown. The four are said to be members of a bootlegging gang that has been operating in this section for some time. The raid followed a three-months investigation.

At the time of the arrest of Brown, he was delivering a large amount of liquor to McBride, who was accompanied by other prohibition agents. As Brown approached to make delivery of the whiskey, McBride told him he was under arrest. Brown shouted to his companions, who were concealed in a nearby barn, and they started firing at the officer. As Kaboris ran out of the barn toward McBride, he was killed. Other members of the raiding party then began firing at the barn, wounding Angelus as he appeared in the door.

U. S. VICTOR IN ANTI-TRUST SUIT

WASHINGTON, June 14—Attorney General Sargent has announced victory in another anti-trust suit, when the Oregon Wholesale Grocers' association filed a consent decree in the Portland, Ore., federal court.

The decree provides that the six corporate and 26 individual defendants shall be perpetually enjoined from doing any acts to prevent, deter or discourage by boycott, intimidation, withdrawal of patronage or other coercive acts, any manufacturer or producer of groceries within the state from shipping or selling merchandise to any customers in Oregon.

The case was against Marshall-Wells company, M. Sellar and company and Messrs. Hunt and Sanford, charging anti-trust activities, Sargent announced. The suit was filed in September, 1924, alleging a conspiracy in restraint of both interstate and foreign trade, in violation of the Sherman law.

Robison's Store Has Large Trade With Park People

One of Buena Park's most progressive business houses is that of S. W. Robison, who does a general merchandise business, carrying a full line of supplies from groceries to dry goods and notions, feed and seeds.

Mr. Robison has been in the present business two years but he has been before the public in Buena Park for seven years, during which time he has made many friends and has been active in the community affairs. He has always striven to excel in service to patrons, and features large values for cash.

Mexico Imposes New Rulings On Crossing Border

CALEXICO, Calif., June 14—New restrictions on Americans entering Mexico at the border, which became effective June 1, do not affect tourists visiting Mexico for less than 24 hours. Adolfo Miranda, inspector in charge of the Mexican port of entry, announced here.

If Americans wish to stay over the 24 hours' limit, they must have letters of recommendation from a Mexican consul and will be issued special permits. Laborers, entertainers, minors and others, however, are subject to the new regulations, while cripples and persons of immoral character and other undesirable are barred without exception.

Boys under 21 years of age must have letters from their parents showing permission to cross the border before permits will be granted. Women under 25 years of age must show either marriage certificates or letters vouching for their character. Laborers are required to show contracts for one year's employment or sufficient money for living expenses for a period of three months.

Demand Payment For Tribal Lands

WASHINGTON, June 14—The Creeks want payment for their land. Suit to recover $29,084,500 with interest, dating back to Aug. 8, 1814, for 23,267,500 acres of land conveyed to the United States after the War of 1815, has just been filed by the Creek nation, Oklahoma.

The suit charges that Gen. Andrew Jackson intimidated the tribesmen. It was their protest that Jackson was authorized to treat with hostile Creeks who had joined forces with the British, and that when the tribal council was called, there was but one hostile chief present.

RACE SUICIDE? BERLIN, June 14.—In a few years the death rate will far exceed the birth rate in Germany, according to Professor Grotjahn, noted German sociologist. In 1900, Germany's birth rate was 35 per thousand, now it is 20 per thousand. If this "race suicide" continues, Germany will be short of labor in eight years, according to Professor Grotjahn.

Homewood Tract Development Boosts Buena Park

ABOUT 200 NEW HOMES ERECTED AT BUENA PARK IN LAST YEAR

Residences Not Makeshift Rattletraps So Common In Many New Districts

CONTRACTOR SETS BUILDING RECORD

Greater Part of Property In Community Purchased On Easy Payment Plan

Within the last year about 200 new homes have been built in Buena Park, the average home being a five or six room modern stucco. This class of home particularly represents the character of the new development of the town. The absence of the makeshift, rattletrap construction, so common in most new towns of people of moderate means is particularly noticeable.

Although the greater part of the property in Buena Park has been sold on easy payments, the class of persons buying have sought modern homes instead of the frame shacks that have characterized most of such subdivisions. In this building program have been a large number of homes constructed by reliable builders.

Prominent among those who have contributed to the town building program are Hattie A. Allen, Maskey and Blades, Joseph L. Mennies, R. G. Bishop, Jack Golden and A. A. Lee.

Builder Sets Record
Out in the R. G. Bishop tract, on the west side of town, an unusual building record has been made by A. A. Lee, contractor. Starting some 12 residence buildings simultaneously, all under his direct building supervision, he has, in eight weeks, completed nine of these structures. The other three are in the hands of the finishers.

When the fact that many rush jobs on home construction require six to eight weeks is considered, the completion of this number of homes by Lee is an unusual record. These homes are modern throughout with hardwood floors, stucco finish and garage. The building has been done in a wholesale way, permitting the sale of these homes at an extremely low figure. This record building campaign includes homes of the following:

Morgan Nutall, five-room stucco; W. B. McIntire, six-room stucco; R. G. Bishop, five-room stucco; Jack Doyle, six-room stucco; Robert Spohn, five-room stucco; E. A. Williams, five-room stucco, double garage; Charles Crumrine, five-room stucco.

A model home, containing six rooms and having a double garage, is to be offered for sale soon by R. G. Bishop.

Many New Residents
The list of new residents brought to Buena Park by Hattie A. Allen in the last year is too lengthy for publication, but her recent sales of new modern five and six-room houses have contributed the following persons to the list of permanent home owners in Buena Park:

Victor S. Moffitt, Whittier; John McCloud, machinist for Union Oil company at Brea; John C. Montgomery, John Akers, H. O. Crosswhite, and J. C. Kitchell.

Five more homes to be constructed soon have been sold by Mrs. Allen. Thirty homes are to be built by her in November. All of these homes have been sold for around $3500 and $6000.

Ralph P. Maskey soon is to build a number of model homes on the 50-foot lots in unit one, several of these now being under construction. One of these homes is being completed at Seventh and Darlington streets.

Jack Golden has built nine modern homes, seven of which he has sold. Two will be for rent.

Much building is being done by Joseph L. Mennies on the Mission Gardens and West Orangethorpe Acres. Eight new homes now are being constructed there, while many more are planned in the near future. Mennies recently purchased a lumber yard in Fullerton and this will give him unlimited facilities for building operations.

Adds to Appearance
An addition and remodeling improvement has added much to the appearance of the plumbing shop and store building adjoining of J. S. Ferret, plumber and sheet metal contractor.

One hundred and ten new homes were erected on the Homewood tract in the last year.

Besides the great number of residences under construction, the recent building of business structures has added much to the town's commercial district. The new tract office of Ralph P. Maskey is 64 by 40 feet, a stucco building. In addition to the tract office, the Homewood subdivision contains a room used by a plumber and a room suitable for a public market, which has

Flowers Add Beauty Touch to Park

A touch of beauty along the busy highway that has created much comment is the little ornamental park in the recess in front of the Homewood office, with its flowers and bright foliage. Here ornamental drives and flowers of brilliant hues are combined to give a pleasing effect, indicating what is possible even in a commercial way in adding to the attractiveness of a community.

DEVELOPMENT OF BUENA PARK IS ASTONISHING

Among the remarkable changes that have come in Southern California and Orange county as the result of industrial development, the phenomenal growth of the small town of Buena Park, and its change almost over night into a thriving community of small farms and homes with several times its former population, stands out as exceptional.

The site of what is now Buena Park was, in its day, roamed by the vast herds of the Spanish Dons, being a part of an old Spanish grant to Abe Pritchard, later passing into the hands of D. Mitchell, J. McCarthy and John Robertson.

Eventually the old grant was broken into parcels among which divisions were the Shumacher, McKinney and Archbald tracts. Just prior to subdivision and development of the portion that has become the principal business section of Buena Park, this land was known as the old Darling farm from which Darlington street derives its name.

Huge Truck Garden
For 14 years this Darling land was framed as a huge truck garden by S. Kitasaka, a Japanese. The unusually productive soil on this farm grew successfully great crops of celery, potatoes, cauliflower and tomatoes. These various crops were grown and marketed during this period of years by Kitasaki, who was eminently successful.

At the time the property was taken over for subdivision, the land was still farmed to some of these crops by this truck gardener.

While there was a fairly prosperous small town on the site of Buena Park before the advent of subdivision, it was without a water supply and the actual beginning of its phenomenal growth from the dawn of the era of subdivision. The actual rapid growth took place, as in many other portions of California, with the laying out of the subdivisions and the spending of large sums upon improvements. With the coming of wide streets, curbs, water, electricity and the division into small farms and home sites, came a desirable class of permanent home seekers who wanted to enjoy the cool climate of Orange county and gain returns from the unusually productive soil in the vicinity. The needs of these new home builders in supplies built up the commercial section of the town.

New Buildings in 1913
In 1913 a picture of Buena Park at the present location of her modern buildings and up-to-date small stores shows only a few small frame buildings under spreading eucalyptus trees. The contrast in these two pictures of a few years ago and the present is quite significant. Lying in a section where climatic and soil conditions, together with adequate water supply favor the growing of all sorts of produce, and surrounded by many productive orange, lemon and walnut groves, Buena Park is certainly well located for future growth. It is in the center of a rich trading territory which includes the rapidly growing communities of La Mirada, Harding, Cypress, Lansdowne and many groups of intervening ranch houses.

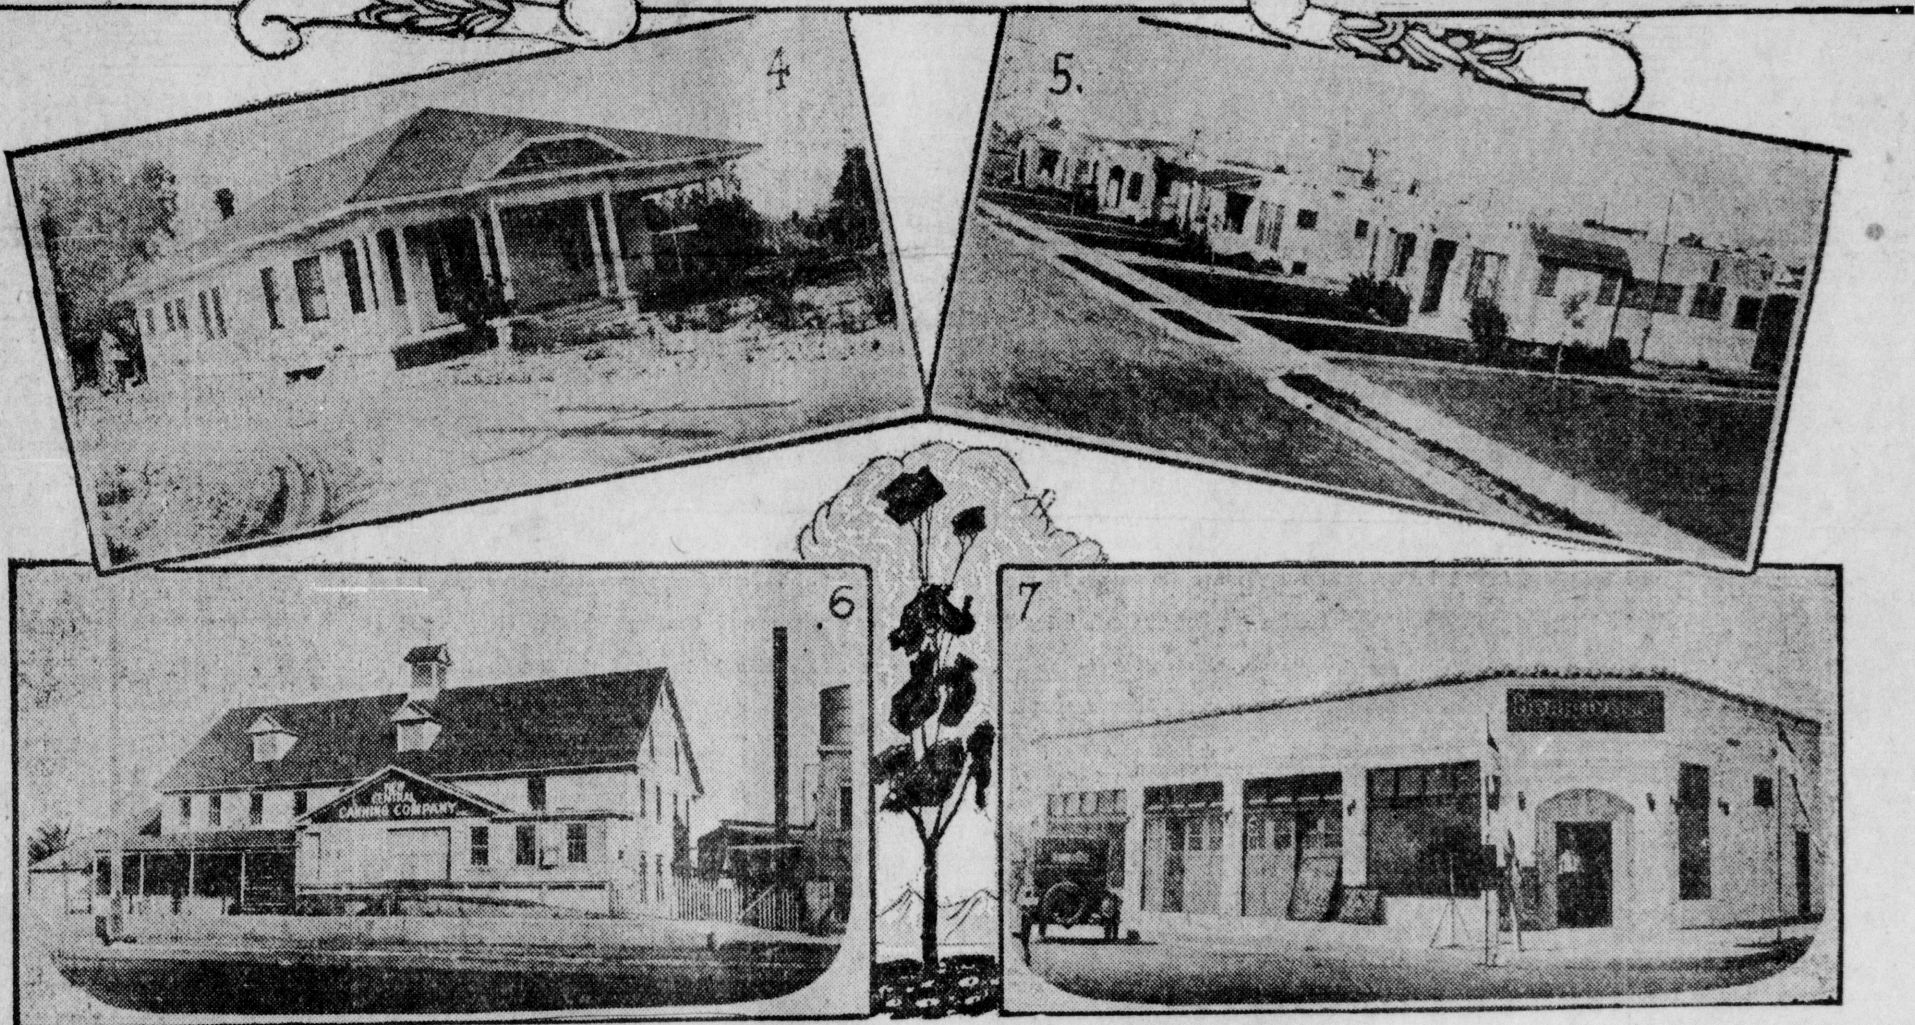

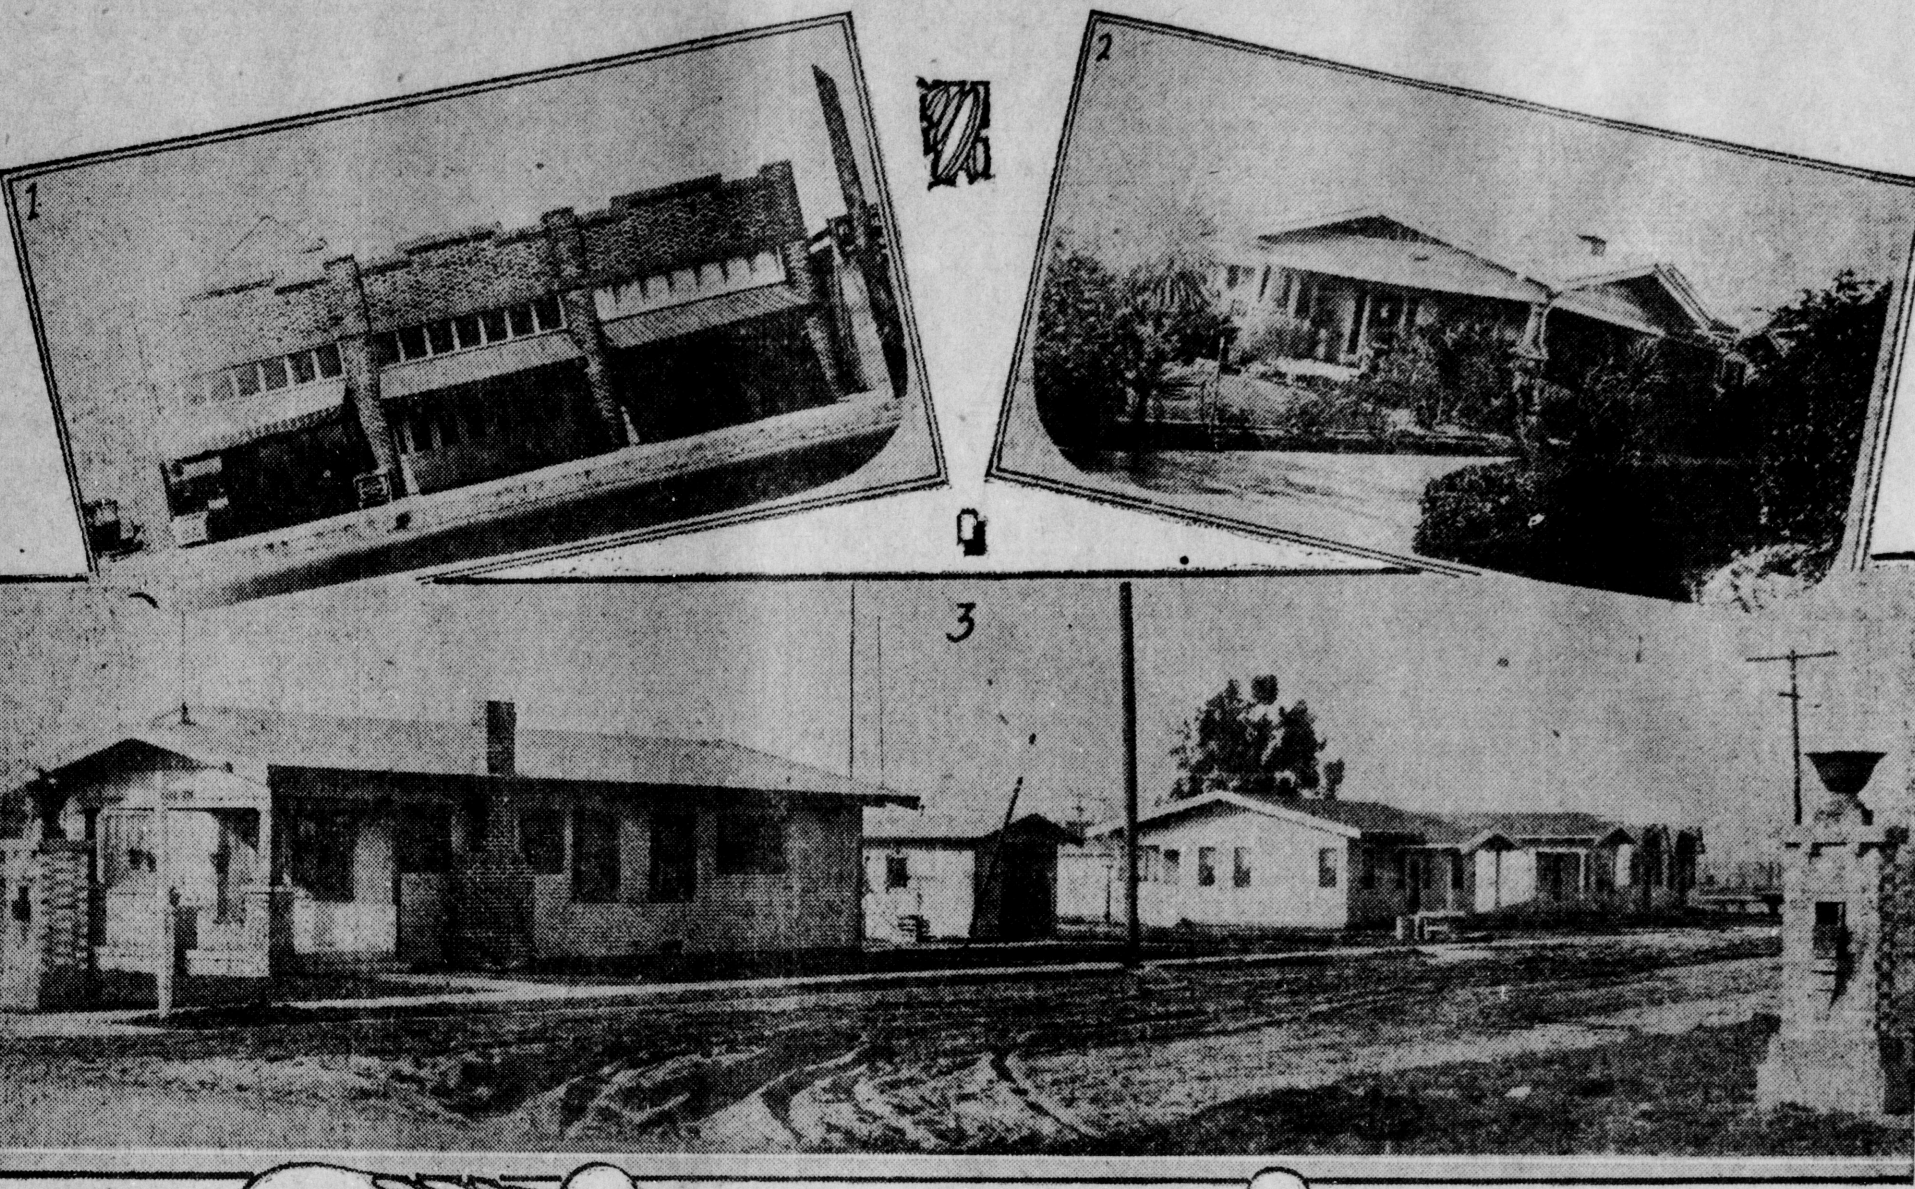

Though each of these communities is rapidly developing a trading center of its own, the enterprise of Buena Park merchants, with good values, has permitted them to penetrate with their merchandise, so that a wide area now looks to Buena Park as the center of their trading activities.

Lansdowne, located between Buena Park and Fullerton, is one of the rapidly growing communities, tributary to Buena Park, while Cypress, four miles southwest has its own school, chamber of commerce and a growing list of merchants. Cypress is recognized as a small town with a future. Harding is located at the junction of Lincoln boulevard and Grand avenue and gives evidence of being a coming small community. La Mirada is the home of the large McNally olive ranch and olive preserving plant, one of the largest in the world.

Far-Sighted Promoters
Determined to be more than "just a wide place in the road," the promoters of business activities in Buena Park were, nevertheless, far-sighted enough to see the immense advantages of a wide boulevard through their town. Grand avenue, its main thoroughfare, is 108 feet wide. It is the route for several transportation companies and bus lines, as well as the meeting point of several prominent county and

Gas Mains Are Being Laid To Homewood Tract

A contract has just been closed for the installation of gas in Buena Park. Already work has been started on laying the mains in unit one and two of the Homewood tract. The community has been trying to obtain gas for some time and until this arrangement was made this week with the Southern Counties Gas company, many building operations had been held up awaiting a decision on the gas.

Dishonesty of Bankrupts Hit

SACRAMENTO, June 14. — Individuals and firms who use the bankruptcy act dishonestly were denounced by Federal Judge Frank H. Kerrigan, in passing sentence here on Peter Goldman, Gerber restaurant proprietor, found guilty of conspiracy to obtain bankruptcy. Goldman was sentenced to one year in the Siskiyou county jail. His attorney, State Senator John Inman, filed notice of appeal.

PHARMACY ENJOYS SPLENDID BUSINESS

Buena Park has one drug store with one purpose, and that is to give good service to the public. The splendid location of the A. Lawrence Tilton drug store, known as the Buena Park pharmacy, in the most prominent building in town is not the only claim to distinction. This store has fixtures equal to any city drug store and fountain. An extremely large sum of money has been invested in these for a business in a town of the size of Buena Park, but they were planned for the future and have proved just right for his present business.

Billiard Parlor Does Big Business

Though Walter Muzzall has a very fine suburban home in Buena Park and has always wanted to be in business locally, his dream was only recently realized. Mr. Muzzall sold his prosperous business in Ventura county which forced him to be away from home a great deal, and purchased the Cheatham billiard parlor in Buena Park. He has added to the line of confectionery goods and cold drinks and is in many ways making his place of business attractive to his patrons.

BUENA PARK ATTRACTS MUCH ATTENTION WITH DISPLAY OF DAHLIAS AS ANNUAL AFFAIR

Some localities have their orange shows, others their rose tournaments. It remains for the little community of Buena Park to gain attention by its dahlia show, which is an exhibit for the entire Orange county and not merely the immediate locality, as many have supposed.

The dahlia show had its inception in a chance suggestion back in 1923 that the woman's club sponsor a dahlia show and its immediate success made it a lasting annual show. It is to be held this year at the school house September 1 with a greater prize list, more exhibitors and in every respect the most remarkable show that has yet been held.

Orange County Affair
Mrs. L. T. Wilsey, president of the club, is eager that it be clearly understood that the dahlia show is an Orange county affair and not confined to Buena Park.

At previous shows there was strong support from Huntington Beach and other sections, but it did not seem to be generally understood that this was an Orange county dahlia show and that the support of the entire county was desired.

Mrs. C. E. Wilcox, who is revising the premium list, reports that the largest list of prizes ever offered will feature the premium list this year. More prizes than just ribbons, dahlia bulbs and orders will be given.

Mrs. Frank Jones is chairman of the dahlia show committee and she reports that an interesting feature of the show this year will be the Installation Of Plumbing Keeps J. S. Ferrett Busy

J. S. Ferrett, plumber and sheet metal worker of Buena Park, has been a busy man of late. Several large installations of plumbing and sanitary systems have occupied his time, while the many buildings under construction has made an unusual demand for all kinds of sheet metal work. Mr. Ferrett has proven his faith in Buena Park by the erection of a nice two stores building, one side of which he occupies in his business, the other for rental purposes. He is assisted in the clerical and office end of the business by Mrs. Ferrett, who has proven quite efficient.

J. E. Wright Runs Modern Garage

The J. E. Wright garage and service station located in Mr. Wright's own building, one of the finest appearing modern structures in town, is perhaps one of the best equipped small town garages and service stations in the state. He has every service for the motorists in spacious quarters. He is agent for the Chevrolet touring cars and trucks. Mr. Wright's personality in business has added much to his success. He is one of the active community workers and is vice president of the chamber of commerce.

Many Permanent Residents Now Located on Little Farms in Neighborhood

The story of the development of Buena Park must of necessity include a recital of the activities of P. H. Blades and R. P. Maskey, who have done more for the town, through the development of the Homewood tract, than any other agency. Buena Park had no water system until arrangements were made with the Homewood management for supply.

At this late date, however, a water district has been formed for the entire community, but through the aid of the tract management, the town was supplied with water until the time of the forming of the water district.

Five sixths of the increase in population that has come to Buena Park has been made up of the permanent residents, brought in to make their homes on the little farms and large lots of this progressive tract.

Early in 1924, the Darling ranch, comprising nearly 200 acres lying on both sides of Grand avenue and extending up to within 200 feet of the Buena Park bank, was acquired by the Homewood officers, experienced subdividers, and opened partly as residence, partly as business and little farm subdivisions. The Darling ranch at that time was a producing truck farm.

Contains 187 Acres
The Homewood tract contains 187 acres and the Anaheim Sugar company tract 65.

The subdividers, with the vision of an ideal home city, arranged to provide parcels of land large enough, together with their poultry and rabbits, to support families and at the same time pay for their little farm out of the products. These little farms were to combine all of the advantages of living in town, with the benefits of country life.

The sum of $60,000 has been spent on improvements in this tract. Five miles of streets have been laid out to conform to county specifications, and five miles of water pipes laid. Electricity is available in all parts of the tract. A large sum was expended in street grading, the laying of concrete sidewalks and curbs, installation of pumping plants and water distributing systems and otherwise improving the property. The water was tested by a chemical analysis by Orange county authorities and shown to be pure, containing only beneficial elements. The water system is sufficient to supply a city of 20,000.

More than 500 ornamental trees have been planted in the parkways of the subdivision's first unit nearest the business center of Buena Park. This is the only uniform and systematic tree planting ever done in the town.

Unit Sold Out

All of unit one of the subdivision has been sold out with the exception of a few lots fronting on the boulevard in the business section. All of the property on the west side of Grand avenue, comprising 113 acres, has been sold, as well as 74 acres on the east side of Grand avenue. Ninety per cent of these sales have been made to persons who immediately improved their properties or are planning to do so with permanent homes. Less than 10 per cent was purchased and held for speculation purposes. A total of $450,000 worth of this land was sold, representing an even greater value to the community as permanent residents and home builders of the best class. Four hundred new homes at the least estimate would mean better than 600 added to the population.

The opening of the New Homewood-McComber tract, which has just started, has greater future possibilities for development than anything that has previously been done, according to Maskey. This 65 acre unit of the first section of 300 acres, a part of the 640-acre McComber ranch, some of which has been highly developed as fruit land and set to oranges and lemons 25 years ago, is the beginning of another community building project, which will probably extend, in time, to the entire 640 acres of the farm.

Attract More People

The past performances of Maskey and Blades and their accomplishment in building a splendid community at Homewood gives every reason to believe that they will accomplish as much in the development of the McComber tract. If the development here is even half as successful as has been their previous venture, it will bring many more desirable people of moderate means, who purchase on the easy payment plan and develop their holdings at once to help pay for

Black Gold Attracts Workers To Park

OIL BIG HELP IN DEVELOPING OF BUENA PARK

Oil has contributed its share to the development of Buena Park. The Standard Oil company's pipe line and the Murphy lease have done their bit. Oil workers from the nearby fields found desirable cheap homes in Buena Park. Connections are easily made by an oil worker living in Buena Park and working in Signal Hill, Santa Fe Springs, Brea or Montebello, while some workers from Huntington Beach, and as far away as Dominguez and Athens, reside in Buena Park.

Among the industries around Buena Park are citrus growing, dairying, truck gardening, berry specialists, and poultry and rabbit raising. The entire area is located in what has been called the "frostless belt" and few freezes have ever been experienced.

The soil around Buena Park is particularly adapted to vegetable growing. A cannery is operated here preserving tomatoes and other products.

Croplands of cabbage, cauliflower, lettuce, peas, asparagus and spinach are shipped out, while sweet potatoes and Irish potatoes are grown for the local market.

A plant wizard and his achievement in producing berries four weeks earlier than any other community, thereby commanding the very highest price on the market, has given Buena Park widespread advertising.

This berry, in addition to being extremely early, is a fairly heavy yielder with small seeds which makes it popular both for canning and table uses. Preston and Knott were the originators of this variety, which is a cross between the Advance and the dew berry. They were produced this year as early as April 1. Forty thousand baskets were picked from a first year planting of 12 acres.

The fact that these berries have been shipped as far as Denver without icing and held up splendidly, suggests possibilities of a great future berry shipping industry for Buena Park acres where the small farmer may specialize and ship through an association.

So popular has been this berry that a large part of the local crop is marketed at a roadside stand.

Adding to the showing made in berry growing in Buena Park, Tom Johnston has also met with success in this line on a smaller acreage. A. Stuart and F. C. Glass with potatoes, sweet and Irish, have shown a profitable business. The Kirkland Fur farms has demonstrated what can be done in rabbit raising. A large number of very successful poultry plants have been established around the town. Victor Zerman has a commercial plant on one half acre and is planning doubling his capacity on an additional half acre.

PARK DEVELOPMENT PROVES ASTONISHING

state highways. This always insures heavy transient travel through town along the wide boulevard.

Buena Park offers transportation facilities of the very best with its continental railways, motor busses from Los Angeles to San Diego, and five highways leading in all directions and connecting with Los Angeles Harbor 18 miles away, and Newport, with its future harbor possibilities.

Both the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe maintain stations in the town and have facilities for the handling of passenger and freight service. Busses of the Motor Transit company maintain half hour service between Buena Park and Los Angeles and Santa Ana. The Pickwick stages from Los Angeles to San Diego also stop.

It is 16 miles from Long Beach, 20 miles from Newport harbor, and 22 miles from Los Angeles. Thus, in location as well as exceptionally good soil, Buena Park is favored for the production of citrus fruits, the raising of poultry and rabbits, and truck gardening and all other forms of intensive farming. This location will always insure ample marketing facilities and outlet for her various commodities, providing a steady income to residents with no danger of flooding or overcrowding the market.

BEAUTIFUL HOMES AND WIDE, PAVED STREETS FEATURE DEVELOPMENT OF FAST GROWING BUENA PARK DISTRICT

No. 1—Grammar School building, latest in California style architecture and modern construction. This building, erected three years ago, already is overcrowded.
No. 2—The palatial C. L. McComber home, situated on a knoll surrounded by 1000 acres of oranges and overlooking the city. Part of the McComber property now is being subdivided.
No. 3—C. H. Moriarty, the wide awake and progressive president of the chamber of commerce. He also is head of the Buena Mercantile company.
No. 4—Grand avenue today. Grand avenue is 108 feet wide and the widest highway in Southern California.
No. 5—The Wright place, typical of California mission construction, situated at the main intersection of Buena Park. Robert G. Bishop has his real estate office in this building.

"Jack's Place" Is Popular With Buena Park Folk

A popular place in Buena Park because of its superior service is the Jack Grady confectionery and cafe known as Jack's place.

Mr. Grady has spent considerable in improving the cafe and installing modern equipment. He also operates the Olive cafe under the same name, and his double buying power with both places has enabled him to give his patrons the very best of service. In fact he has built a reputation by the superior quality of his "eats" and drinks and he has featured quick service for a busy, hurrying, transient trade as well as his local patrons.

their land by the income.

At the time of the original opening of the Homewood tract, the present accomplishment here was said to be impossible and many even openly opposed the coming of subdivision to their quiet country village.

The first of this acreage was sold two years ago for $600 an acre. Now half acres are selling for $1200 and are much in demand in the developed part of town. This sale is between individuals, who have previously bought, and is a price fixed by the demand and not by the subdivision concern.

The fact that race restrictions are maintained has added to the desirability of the property. A restriction on the front lot line of $1500, sided and painted houses, has been maintained in the tract.

Maskey believes that the future demand for property in this new Homewood-McComber tract now being opened will cause just as great an increase over present values as the past has shown. Already many lots on the highway, considered potential business property, have been purchased.

DAHLIA DISPLAY IS ANNUAL PARK EVENT

four years ago when Mrs. L. T. Wilsey, president of the club, launched the movement for an annual dahlia exhibit. The remarkable success of this first show determined the policy of continuing it as an annual feature.

Last year the show was an even greater success and attracted visitors from far and near. This created many new enthusiasts who were added to the list of dahlia culturists. This year the largest number of entrants ever showing is expected.

One of the most remarkable displays of past years was that of Mrs. George Trapp, who carried away the blue ribbon. One gorgeous specimen of a seedling blossom measured eight inches in diameter. Other attractive displays were from the gardens of Mrs. C. E. Wilcox of Cypress and Mrs. R. A. Marsden of Buena Park. All of these and many more will show this year. Rules for the exhibit provide that any resident of Orange county in addition to Buena Park Woman's club members can exhibit. All entries are to be home grown.

Serious Community Problem Is Solved

WATER SYSTEM IS INSTALLED BY TRACT FIRM

A very practical arrangement in an interchanging water system between that of the town plant and that of the Homewood tract provides against Buena Park ever being without water.

Before the forming of the water district the town was supplied by the tract. When the district was formed, Maskey and Blades deeded to the town a lot 100 feet square on which the town's pumping plant was installed, drawing its water, however, from one of the tract wells.

A double, or alternate well, and pumping plant is so arranged that if anything went wrong mechanically, it is only necessary to switch to the other well and the water supply will be undisturbed.

WOMEN DRAG ROADS

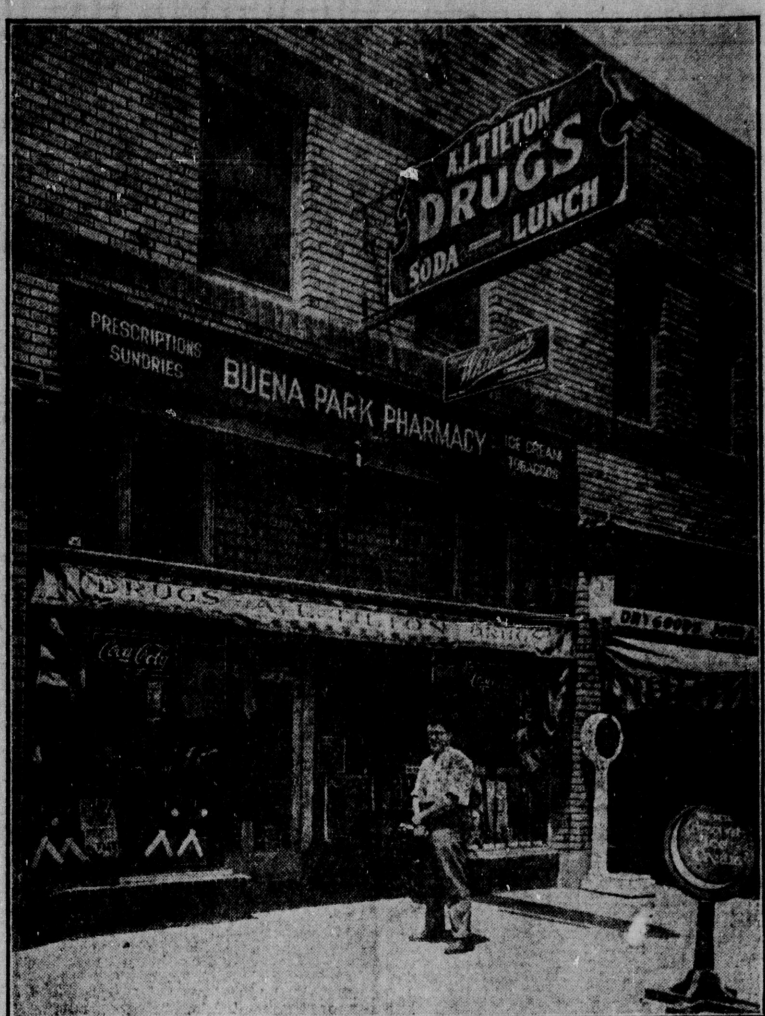

EDINA, Mo., June 12—Three women of this neighborhood drag the roads, under contract, and like their work. They are Mrs. Gertie Oliver, Mrs. Perry Vandiver and Mrs. Elmer Francis. They drive mule teams and have been doing it for several years.

Wide Street In Center of Town Mark of Progress

Buena Park has had two things that have meant much in her progress. One of these was that 25 years ago when Harry Whitaker laid out the original townsite, he left the main street, Grand avenue, 108 feet in width. The other was the fact that the better class of subdividers and community builders were attracted and came to Buena Park, bringing with them improvements and new residents. In addition to what has been done by the Maskey and Blades firm, is the work of Joseph L. Mennes of Fullerton. Mr. Mennes, unlike many promoters, avoids the limelight of publicity and to obtain information of what splendid work he has done in community building, it was necessary to get it from outside sources.

In his work of converting the old Allen farm of 130 acres into a prosperous community of homes, Mr. Mennes certainly deserves commendation. Other tracts developed by him are the West Orangethorpe, Mennes tracts and Mission Gardens. Water distributing systems were laid out, over 40 homes erected and much general improvement work done. Eight new houses are now under construction in West Orangethorpe, 12 have just been completed at Mission Gardens, making over 20 built there, and four or five are now under construction on the Mennes tract. This building program has meant much to Buena Park.

12 BUSINESS ENTERPRISES HOUSED IN NEW STRUCTURE

This is the type of new building that has been built by Shumacher, Trapp and Golden, enterprising Buena Park men. This entire building, only a portion of which is shown here, houses a dozen different Buena Park business enterprises.

CHAMBER CHIEF IS BUSY WITH CIVIC PROBLEMS

The old idea of getting a busy man when something was really wanted done was followed in placing C. H. Morlarity at the head of the chamber of commerce.

Mr. Morlarity, as head of the Buena Mercantile company, doing a general merchandise business, had his hands full without this office, as his large and prosperous business engaged much of his time. But he, nevertheless, has proven an efficient head to the chamber. His ascendancy to office came at a particularly trying time when a small community was changing into a little city. The duties of the chamber to bring together conflicting elements and line up the less aggressive, so that all might aid in community development has been a big task.

The fact that the head of the body is more or less an object of criticism, no matter how efficient, has not prevented him from taking a positive stand on what he believed was good for the community. His splendid performance in office has given no occasion for criticism, and he has brought more harmony to the chamber than it has ever previously known. While doing these things he has had a great growth in patronage his general merchandising business is rapidly increasing.

Young Salesman Of Park Lots Is Most Successful

Dewitt Voorhees, the oldest tract salesman in period of service at the Homewood offices, is nevertheless the youngest salesman in Buena Park.

In his two years of service with the concern, he has sold 128 tracts of land. He exhibited his own faith in the land and, like the doctor who took his own medicine, has bought several tracts himself. He owns some very choice property on Commonwealth avenue and several lots on Artesia street, which, with the new paving program completed, will be valuable business property. Mr. Voorhees is a booster for Buena Park and one who has done much in community affairs.

Town Blacksmith Expert With Tools

The second oldest man in Buena Park, though young in years, such is the record of Oscar West, blacksmith and mechanic. Mr. West has fixed enough farm implements, sharpened enough plows and shod enough horses in his day to literally cover the entire town, if all piled up at once.

As the modern mechanical devices came into use, Mr. West kept abreast of conditions and was found to be just as practical in the modern repair work and welding and brazing as he was in the former days of general blacksmithing. He carries a full line of farm implements and his long continued service in the town has made many friends while his skill in his line of workmanship has brought him prosperity and success.

Heavy Traffic Passes Through On Wide Streets

More than half of the traffic which passes from Los Angeles into Orange county goes by Buena Park over Grand avenue, a 108 foot paved boulevard. Plans are under way for the improvement of several other main laterals, all of which will center in Buena Park.

The Greater Manchester avenue traffic outlet from the southern part of Los Angeles county and San Diego will connect with Grand avenue here. Orangethorpe Canyon avenue from Redondo Beach to Santa Ana, entering Buena Park to the south, is soon to be paved. Artesia street, joining Long Beach boulevard with Fullerton is now being paved. It enters Buena Park on the north. Commonwealth and Whitaker avenues leading east from Grand are to be improved. Committees are working for the paving of Artesia street to Artesia. The completion of the paving of Stanton avenue connecting Grand avenue and Huntington Beach has been very welcome to local boosters. An effort is also being made to secure a highway from Whittier and La Habra.

Jack Golden Has No Use for Folk Who Knock City

There is one man in Buena Park who believes in the principle: "Don't knock your home town." Jack Golden thinks that with as many good things as can be said for Buena Park, any man who can't say something good had better keep still, for with all there is to be said, the knocker is wasting valuable time in which a real booster could be putting in a good word for his community. Mr. Golden has invested heavily in Buena Park, both in money and time. He believes in his home town and expects to build and improve more property, though what he has already done runs into six figures.

Mr. Golden came to Buena Park in 1915. He purchased the Joe Keith grocery and operated it successfully for two and one-half years. He later sold to C. H. Morlarity. He has given his full time since going out of this business to building operations and real estate.

Painter Attracted By City's Future

O. J. Pickering, painter, decorator and paint contractor, selected Buena Park as a place of business because of its wonderful future. He liked the climate and saw the immense building activity. He had faith in its future. The success he has attained has convinced him he was right. Mr. Pickering has found the community loyal in supporting its home workmen.

Realtor Is Big Park Booster

Among the real estate men who have done more than just exact a livelihood from their business is Robert G. Bishop. Though a success in his line of work, Mr. Bishop has derived a great deal of pleasure out of the building game and the landing of new residents for Buena Park.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the Republic for which it stands; one Nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

OUR COMMENCEMENT WEEK

This week is the greatest week, up to this time, in the lives of some hundreds of boys and girls of Santa Ana. And for parents, too, it is a great week, for the lives of parents in Santa Ana are wrapped around the affairs of their children.

This is Commencement Week. It marks the culmination of years of effort. It's a milestone in education. For some of those graduating in Santa Ana, this week means the end of school.

It is a week always to be remembered, and since it is a wonderful week for them, let us all join together in making it even more wonderful than it could be without our co-operation.

Santa Ana is to be congratulated upon the high standard of citizenship in Santa Ana homes as evidenced in the high standards set and maintained in our schools. The excellence of a school is not entirely the product of a faculty, though management and faculty are essential. Its excellence is dependent upon the material with which the management and faculty have to work. Santa Ana is fortunate in having good material and good management and faculties.

One need but attend any commencement gathering to be convinced by the appearance of the children that the material has been good and that good work has been done with it.

SUMMER SUNSHINE

People should need no urging to get out into the sunshine. Yet there is a queer, old-fashioned prejudice against it as soon as the days become really bright and warm. That is unfortunate especially for the children, who need sunshine still more than their elders.

"Most of the people in the United States and Canada," a Toronto physician tells the American Health Congress, "suffer during the winter and spring for lack of sunlight, and that accounts for the high mortality of these months."

In most parts of the country, for about half the year, the sun, even when shining, is weakened by its low altitude and thick air, so that the ultra-violet rays are cut off. Those are the rays needed to stimulate life, and needed to make children grow. Without them, rickets and other diseases of malnutrition develop. Three-fourths of all babies develop rickets to some extent during the winter, says this doctor. That can be remedied by the use of cod liver oil, egg yolks and certain other foodstuffs, but the very best remedy is sunshine, as clear and strong as possible. The brunettes can stand almost any amount of it, and the blonds can stand it if they become accustomed to it gradually.

"We must persuade all mothers to put their babies in the sun," he says. "Careful experiments have shown that it will not hurt the babies' eyes, as has been supposed."

It will not do the same good to give the kiddies their sunshine indoors, through glass window panes. The glass keeps out the ultra-violet rays. They must get sunlight direct. And so must their elders, if the latter are to enjoy health and vigor.

The sun is the great dynamo of vital energy. Don't waste it.

GAS PRICE INVESTIGATION

The Interstate Commerce Commission, by order of the United States Senate, will investigate the prices of gasoline and other petroleum products, and report at the next session of Congress whether they are "arbitrarily made and unwarranted."

That will do no harm, and may do some good. There is a widespread impression that these prices are "arbitrarily made," whether warranted or unwarranted. Gasoline prices usually rise and fall together, by some mysterious coincidence, among "trust" dealers and "independent" dealers. It is just as well to have the facts spread forth.

At the same time there are other matters concerning the petroleum industry that are more important. They have to do with the waste of petroleum resources. Production is still far too wasteful. Producers could further improve their processes, and there might be some kind of agreement reached, an outsider would think, for saving large pools in the ground against a time of future dearth. The government might help in that.

Consumption is no less wasteful. Engineers agree that present gas engines are inefficient. If what they say is true, all the automotive transportation in this country might be accomplished with half the present consumption of gasoline, by merely improving engines and cars with a view to economy of fuel consumption. So far, that seems to have been the last consideration in the development of our motor cars.

NO HELP ON THE ROAD

Here is a tragic story carried in the news dispatches the other day. An automobile, with a man and his wife, went over a 30-foot embankment and overturned, pinning the woman underneath. It was night, but automobiles were passing along every little while. The husband, himself injured, stood by the roadside signalling drivers to stop, to get help in releasing his badly injured wife.

Hour after hour passed, and never a car stopped to aid him. At dawn he was found lying there unconscious, and his wife was dead.

Heartless drivers? Not necessarily so. They were afraid he was a hold-up man. To such a pass have things come in one of the most populous states in the Union, in the vicinity of one of the most highly civilized communities in the world. It is perilous to be a good Samaritan.

That is as tragic for society as it is for the immediate sufferers.

COURTROOM PAY

Federal jurors and witnesses now draw higher pay, as the result of a recent act of Congress. The jurors get $4 a day instead of $3 and the witnesses $2 instead of $1.50.

This is modest enough recompense, especially for the jurors, who have long hours and responsible work. Almost any person can earn more money doing almost any kind of work. It is usually worse with the state and municipal courts. Court work is still on the old basis of a time when a couple of dollars a day was fair pay.

Something should be allowed, no doubt, for a sense of public obligation.

Jury service, and perhaps witness service, too, should be considered a public duty. Yet the witness or juror, like any other servant of God or man, is worthy of his hire. Most witnesses and jurors lose too much in rendering such service. And if they were paid more nearly according to ordinary standards of industry or business, it might induce the courts to expedite lawsuits more than they do, in order to save expense.

Good Roads Pay in Service

Long Beach Press-Telegram

Highway improvements pay big dividends. This economic principle is recognized wherever it has been applied in a businesslike way. California, with its rare opportunities for touring, was one of the first states to sense possible profits in good roads, and the campaign has been gaining momentum from the very beginning.

The same message has been received approvingly in other localities, with the result that the mileage of permanent roads is increasing rapidly, virtually in all parts of the Union.

Because of the widespread recognition of the wisdom of this policy, it has been somewhat surprising to find opposition voiced to the established plan of Federal aid for such projects.

The objectors were convincingly answered at a recent hearing in Washington by A. M. Loomis of the National Grange, also a member of the Advisory Board, for the District of Columbia, of the American Automobile Association. Mr. Loomis stated:

It is a matter of record that increased service at lower costs in rural mail and parcels post has already made savings which go far toward paying the interest on every dollar of Federal aid spent for highway construction.

He pointed out further that with the introduction of rural mail service the use of the highways by the government was greatly increased, while every mile of surfaced roads means longer delivery routes and a larger number of people served.

The Federal government now is using 205,572 miles of highway every day in this service, while it so far has assisted the states in improving approximately 200,000 miles. In the use of this road mileage by the government, 18,060,816 individuals are being served, and there still are 14,000,000 persons to be added as the service is extended.

It will be admitted, of course, that the benefits to the postal department comprise a very small item in the aggregate of advantages which come to the public with the building of good roads. And inasmuch as the public comprises the United States of America, there is no good reason why the United States of America should not do its part toward increasing the convenience, comfort and prosperity of the American people.

War, Columns—Peace, Lines

San Francisco Chronicle

Six lines in the morning paper under an Angora date line tell all the anyone wants to know about Turkey's ratification of the treaty by which England keeps control of Mosul and its oil fields.

Columns and columns were printed about Mosul while Turkey was defying the League of Nations and covertly threatening to go to war to hang on to that vilayet. So long as there was a fight in prospect the world kept the spotlight trained on the Turks. Now that the fight is off and everyone gets a cut on the oil profits, six lines are enough.

Peace is a desirable thing, no doubt, but it is nothing to get excited about. Perhaps that is one reason the world does not have more of it.

Pensions for Ministers

Redlands Facts

The Presbyterian church in the United States, following the general plan adopted by the Episcopal churches has entered upon a financial campaign which will result in self-sustaining pensions for all its ministers over 65 years of age, with a reserve fund of $15,000,000.

All honor to their denomination for also taking thought as to the future of its ministers when they shall have attained an age when they are too old to preach, and, for the same reason are barred from any other occupation whereby they may make a living.

A pension for all ministers of the gospel who have reached the age of 65 should be approved by all who realize how little there is, in the way of pecuniary gain, for the average minister of the gospel.

Silk Stocking Peacemakers

Bloomington (Ill.) Bulletin

There is one commonplace little fact pretty generally overlooked by the alarmists who are perpetually talking about the probability of a war between the United States and Japan. That little fact is the silkworm. Short skirts demand silk hose. In fact, they demand so many silk hose that the Japanese silkworms have been working overtime. Japanese labor has been getting increased employment and Japanese commerce has been enjoying a healthy boom. The prosperity of the island kingdom is dependent upon our hosiery market. To talk about war in the face of these facts is to talk foolishness. Japan is not likely to become very quarrelsome with us—until lisle and cotton stage a comeback, at least.

THE DIET MANIA

Reducing body weight, as the General Federation of Women's Clubs agrees, has become "a national mania," especially with the fair sex. This resolution, adopted in their national convention, is timely.

"Whereas, many women and girls have injured their health by reducing nostrums and wrong and injurious methods of dieting, and by bringing themselves below their normal healthy weight, while others are dangerously overweight, and

"Whereas, there at present are no adequate tables which tell women what they ought to weigh, therefore be it

"Resolved, that we urge the women of America not to impair their health and that of future generations by reducing methods other than those advocated by reliable physicians."

It is doubtful whether any nation of former times ever treated physical shape and weight as a mere matter of style, changing bodies along with clothes, as this generation of Americans is disposed to do.

It is done mostly in quest of beauty, which is a desirable ideal. But the Greeks developed more beautiful bodies than ours, without starving themselves and inviting diseases of malnutrition. They were content to be neither fat nor lean, choosing the middle way.

The Italians and the Dutch in their greatest periods of artistic development were inclined to be stout, and evidently considered that no blemish, as their masterpieces show.

The Venus de Milo and the Sistine Madonna would probably be expected today to adopt a fool diet, and wreck their health in the process.

Whither Away, Old Thing?

All Hail, Our Flag!

Of all the flags of history the American flag is the oldest. To us it is the most beautiful. Sporting in the breeze, it is a mosaic of ribboned loveliness; drooping in softer airs, the staff is transformed into a Maypole of festal delight.

During the long years of its life our country has engaged in a number of wars, yet its flag has never rippled in support of an unworthy cause, and has never known defeat. It has no taint of scandal—no spot of dishonor.

It was in 1776 it won our independence as a nation. In 1812 it established the freedom of the seas and the rights of American seamen on those seas.

In 1846 it vindicated our national dignity which had been flouted by Mexico. In 1861 it preserved the Union. In 1898 it freed struggling Cuba from tyranny and oppression. Again victorious in the Great War, it flies triumphantly, a beautiful, incomparable emblem of Liberty and Freedom to all the people of the earth.

The "Red, White and Blue," the "Star Spangled Banner," the "Stars and Stripes," "Old Glory," by whatever name it be called, all hail, the American Flag—OUR FLAG.

Worth While Verse

THE LAST ROSE OF SUMMER

'Tis the last rose of summer
Left blooming alone;
All her lovely companions
Are faded and gone;
No flower of her kindred,
No rosebud is nigh,
To reflect back her blushes,
Or give sigh for sigh.

I'll not leave thee, thou lone one!
To pine on the stem;
Since the lovely are sleeping,
Go, sleep thou with them.
Thus kindly I scatter
Thy leaves o'er the bed,
Where thy mates of the garden
Lie scentless and dead.

—Thomas Moore.

The Stars and Stripes

The American flag is among the oldest of national flags.

The Stars and Stripes was permanently planted in Alaska, at Sitka, Oct. 18, 1867.

The Stars and Stripes was first officially saluted by a foreign government on Feb. 14, 1778.

The Stars and Stripes was first unfurled in battle on the banks of the Brandywine, Sept. 11, 1777.

The Stars and Stripes was first carried around the world by the ship "Columbia," of Salem, Mass., in 1790.

The idea of an annual celebration of American Flag Day was originated by Professor George Balch of New York City.

The Stars and Stripes was first carried across the frontier into Germany by the American Army of Occupation, Nov. 14, 1918.

The first display of the national flag as a military post was at Fort Schuyler, on the site of the present city of Rome, N. Y., on August 3, 1777.

"Old Glory" was first applied to the United States flag in 1831 by William Driver, a sailing captain at Salem, Mass., who died in Nashville, Tenn., in 1886.

The high school of New Bedford,

Mass., was the first public school in the country to raise the American flag over the schoolhouse, which it did on May 11, 1861.

The Stars and Stripes was first carried into action on a European battlefield by Gunner William H. Clancy, of the Royal Field Artillery of Canada, at Vimy Ridge, in 1917.

During the Revolution the flag had 13 stars; in the War of 1812, 25; in the Mexican War, 29; in the Civil war, 35; in the Spanish-American war, 45; and in the World war 48.

On April 4, 1818, Congress passed an act reducing the number of stripes in the national flag to 13, and increasing the number of stars to represent at all times the number of states.

The Stars and Stripes was first hoisted over a foreign stronghold June 28, 1778, when Captain Rathbone of the American sloop of war "Providence" captured Fort Nassau, on the Bahama Islands.

Captain Paul Jones was the first man to display the American flag on an American vessel. This flag was made by the women of Portsmouth, N. H., for the "Ranger," which was fitted out at Portsmouth for Captain Jones.

California Politics

A review of state politics appearing in a recent issue of the Riverside Press is interesting. It is interesting as coming from the Press house. E. P. Clarke is editor of that paper. Clarke is president of the California State Board of Education, and in attending to the affairs of that position he makes frequent trips to Sacramento.

Clarke has been in a neutral position in the contest for governor. One reading his reviews, however, sees suggestions that indicate a leaning, perhaps unconscious, that seem quite strongly toward Richardson. It is understood that had State Superintendent of Schools Will C. Wood gone into the race Clarke's leanings would likely have been strongly in Wood's direction. The Press review, under the heading, "They Are Off," reads as follows:

"The entries for the great gubernatorial derby that will be run on August 31 are now undoubtedly all in so far as the Republicans are concerned. The Democrats recently held a convention to pick a candidate but adjourned without doing so. Their hope apparently is that when Senator James D. Phelan returns from Europe in the near future, he will consent to make the race for governor. In that event, the convention will be reconvened to endorse him.

"The Republican entries in the race are as follows:

"Governor Friend W. Richardson. "Lieutenant Governor C. C. Young.

"Judge Rex B. Goodcell. "Supervisor R. F. McClellan.

"The Press is not ignoring the fact that there are two or three other names suggested but no move has been made to get them on the ballot; and for the purpose of this discussion, they may be ignored.

"Governor Richardson has served one term; and many of those who opposed him four years ago have to admit that his administration has been more creditable than they predicted it would be. The extravagant claims regarding economy have not been realized; but no one who was well versed in the business of the state government expected that they would be, or, in fact, could be without crippling important activities of the state.

"On the whole the business of the state has been pretty well administered during the last four years.

"The governor has in large degree the same strong newspaper support that he had four years ago; he is making his campaign on the issues of economy and law enforcement (both popular slogans) and he is counting on a divided opposition to insure his success.

"Lieutenant Governor Young is distinctly an opposition candidate. His campaign is one of criticism; he claims that the governor has not fulfilled his economy pledges, that no constructive plans have been made for a revision of the tax system, and that the luke-warm attitude of Governor Richardson on the Boulder Dam issue has been a factor in delay.

Mr. Young has the Cryer organization in Los Angeles behind him (Mayor Cryer in fact heads the Young committee in Southern California); he has the Republican organization in San Francisco also; and his newspaper support, while not as extensive as that of Governor Richardson, is well distributed and influential. Mr. Young is making an energetic canvass of the entire state.

"Judge Goodcell is making an independent campaign. He is a man of attractive personality and an effective speaker; and he seems to have no trouble in securing opportunities to speak. His newspaper support is limited, but his publicity bureau is a busy one and considerable news is carried regarding his campaign by him editorially.

Judge Goodcell's campaign seems to be well financed; and the judge himself is very optimistic regarding the outcome at the primary.

"Supervisor McClellan is something of a mystery candidate. His announcement came as a big surprise and he is handicapped by the fact that he is almost unknown outside of Los Angeles county. Even in that county, not a single newspaper is supporting him so far as the writer is able to learn. His backing comes from interests that supported Richardson four years ago.

"The real battle ground in the primary will be in Los Angeles county. The Times will lead the fight for Governor Richardson, not so much apparently because of enthusiasm for him as because of opposition to Mayor Cryer. The slogan of the Times is that the election of Young would make Kent Parrot, Cryer's campaign manager, political boss of the state. The Examiner is supporting Young on the Boulder Dam issue. The Prisk papers, the Pasadena Star-News, the Long Beach Press-Telegram, have both come out for Richardson. They are among the very strongest evening papers in the state and their influence in the campaign will be important. The three outstanding problems are; the extent to which the Cryer people can capitalize the Boulder Dam proposition; the uncertainty as to whether Goodcell will draw from Richardson or Young; and the extent of the McClellan vote which is generally conceded will largely come from people hitherto friendly to the governor. The people alone can answer those questions; and their reply will not be known until the votes are counted."

THAT when you see certain citizens show some signs of life it is a good indication that business will pick up.

THAT every business man should be a member of the Chamber of Commerce of his home city.

THAT he owes it to himself, to his business and to his community to take an active part in the building and the general welfare of the city and surrounding country.

THAT some fossils around some cities should think before they act. If they did they wouldn't wouldn't lose much time in joining the Chamber of Commerce.

THAT the man who tries to get something for nothing usually gets nothing.

THAT to think that a city can get something without co-operation is just a dream, and as long as that dream stays with them they will get no real development.

THAT nothing worth having can be secured without being worked for, traded for or bought and paid for.

THAT a whole lot of people should think for themselves instead of having someone think for them.

Every community should in every way possible patronize, protect and encourage the business and industries they already have.
